Frogmen Hunt Bodies In Twisted Girders

VANCOUVER (CP) — Skin divers worked in bright sunlight today to recover the last of 18 men killed or believed buried in the twisted wreckage of the collapsed Second Narrows Bridge.

Fourteen bodies were in the Vancouver morgue. Two others were located Tuesday after two sections of the bridge collapsed into Burrard Inlet, but could not be recovered immediately.

Two other men were missing and possibly swept downstream by tidal rips.

The two outermost spans of the skeletal structure, jutting out from the North Vancouver shore, collapsed with a mighty groan soon after 3.30 p.m., plunging construction workers into the tidal stream.

Some victims were crushed to death by the massive girder work falling on top of them.

Others were pinned under the water by the debris and drowned before they could be reached. Officials believed the men were swept away by the tide to drown downstream.

The men dropped more than 150 feet into the inlet, which varies in depth between 35 and 40 feet.

MORE LIFE JACKETS

Most of those taken from the water had life jackets on and some of the victims were harnessed to the girders with safety belts. Rescue workers had to labor with crowbars among the tangled wreckage to free some of the victims.

Shipping through the Narrows was unaffected by the accident. The bridge so far extends barely one-third of the way across the channel and does not cover the main shipping lane. The 200-foot-high centre span has not yet been constructed.

The metal framework rises from the shore on concrete pillars, the last completed being 140 feet high. The bridge is planned to cover a distance of two miles, including approaches.

CRAN TOPPLES

Today the toppled spans, fourth and fifth in the structure stretching two-thirds across the inlet from the North Vancouver shore toward the city, each capped with one end in the water and the other leaning on high concrete piers. Mashed within the tangle of girders was the wreckage of a crane which toppled with the fourth span.

The spans that fell had been set in place on concrete pillars

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Our Father, who art in heaven, we thank Thee for this day. We are grateful for all material blessings, for we recognize that all these come from Thee. Forgive us when we walk. Help us to forget self but never to forget Thee. Confront us with our responsibility to persons in need, whether their needs are material or spiritual. Help us to live this day as though it might be our last day here. We ask all this in the name of Christ. Amen.

VIOLENCE THREATENS FRENCH CELEBRATIONS

PARIS (UPI) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle led nationwide ceremonies today marking the 15th anniversary of his wartime rallying call. But Communist orders for "anti-Fascist demonstrations" threatened to mar the day with street rioting.

Heavy police reinforcements were stationed along the Champs Elysee to head off any possible violence between leftwing and rightwing extremists.

DEFICIT OF $648 MILLION

Paper-Thin Tax Cuts In Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives' first full-scale budget has given Canadians almost invisible tax cuts and the prospect of record government spending.

Tax reductions of $26,000,000 a year were thinly scattered in Finance Minister Fleming's budget Tuesday night as he predicted a $648,000,000 deficit, another peacetime high.

For the remainder of the current fiscal year that started April 1, the indicated tax reductions are just $8,000,000, a drop in the "bucket" against revenues of $4,652,000,000.

NO BASIC CHANGES

There were selective tax exemptions, no one benefiting much.

There were no changes in personal or corporation income tax rates, the big items of treasury intake.

Nor was there any change in the special excise taxes on such major articles as automobiles, radio and TV sets, tobacco products and liquor.

By and large, in the first Conservative budget in 23 years, the government stuck to previously defined policies for beating the recession, a mixture of tax and allied policies.

Mr. Fleming's presentation, delivered to the Commons in a two-hour speech, was promptly labeled by the Liberal party as a "sick" budget.

RAISE WOOL TARIFF

Tariff proposals included wide-ranging immediate changes aimed at protection of some Canadian industries, notably against imports of woollen cloths from Britain. This tariff went up from 50 cents a pound to 55 and 60.

Anti-dumping legislation will be forthcoming shortly, though there was some prospect that it could run into trouble from countries exporting into Canada. The proposal will be to toughen the law against goods "dumped" into this country by assessing special dumping duties on the basis of production cost plus "reasonable profit, instead of the present basis of selling price in the country of origin.

When he came to cutting taxes, Mr. Fleming, in his 20,500-word speech, gave away

New Witnesses From Toronto In Bribe Case

See Also Page 20

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Crown disclosed today that it is bringing new witnesses from Toronto to testify in the Sommers bribery conspiracy case involving former lands and forest minister Robert Sommers and others.

Prosecutor Victor Dryer made the disclosure today in commenting on criticism by defence counsel Walter Owen.

The defence lawyer Tuesday charged that the Crown was not calling the right witnesses and that the police seemed interested in contacting only those who would create a prejudice against the accused.

Prosecutor Dryer said that as a result of this he had the RCMP telephone Toronto Tuesday night and contact three more prospective witnesses including a clerk at the Royal York Hotel whom he did not identify.

The development came after William A. Thorne, credit manager of the Royal York was recalled to the stand to identify certain hotel registration cards.

$4 Million Damage In Vancouver Bridge Disaster

On the heels of Tuesday afternoon's disastrous collapse of the partially-completed new Second Narrows Bridge at Vancouver, in which 18 men died, there were these developments today:

● A provincial government royal commission of investigation by Chief Justice Sherwood Lett got underway immediately.

● An unidentified foreman on the job was quoted as saying the disaster resulted when a temporary pier holding the outermost steel span gave way. As one span went into the water, it wrenched loose a concrete pier, causing a second span to fall.

● Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi estimated the damage to the bridge itself at $3-$4,000,000 but said this loss will be borne by Dominion Bridge Company, the contractor, and its insurers, and will not cost the public "a nickel."

● CCF Opposition leader Robert Strachan demanded an investigation of the entire highways department and its extended building program. This was echoed by at least one newspaper, the Vancouver Sun, which also asks for a recheck of all major construction projects.

The following story and others on this page and pages 3 and 17 tell the details of the disaster and its aftermaths.

Commissioner Begins Inquiry

Attorney-General Robert Bonner flew to Vancouver by seaplane from Inner Harbor this morning to confer with Chief Justice Lett on the royal commission investigation.

Chief Justice Lett was appointed by Premier Bennett Tuesday night.

His duties, as a one-man royal commission, will be to determine whether negligence was responsible for the tragedy.

Mr. Bonner carried with him official terms of reference which will govern the investigation.

Terms of reference give wide-spread powers to Chief Justice Lett.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Mr. Justice Lett can call in any experts to assist him.

The government has been offered "all the help they can give" by the Professional Engineers' Society of B.C., the premier added.

APPLIES OWN TOURNIQUET

Calmly Lights Fag After Leg Cut Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 22-year-old steelworker, trapped in the girders of the fallen Second Narrows Bridge, put a tourniquet on his severed leg with his belt and then lit a cigaret while waiting for rescuers.

George Schmidt of Vancouver was working in one of the girders Tuesday when two sections of the bridge collapsed, killing 18 men.

Trapped only a few feet above the water of Burrard Inlet, he looked down and saw that one of his legs had been sheared off just above the knee.

He took off his belt and made a tourniquet with it around his thigh. He then smoked a cigaret and waited until two men came and lifted him out of the mangled steel into their rowboat.

CHARGED WITH EXTORTION

Maid Arrested--Kidnap Suspect

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto police today arrested Greta Goede, 45-year-old German immigrant, and charged her with attempted extortion in connection with a case here.

Inspector John Nimmo said she is the woman wanted in Montreal on a charge of kidnapping two-year-old Joel Reitman.

A warrant for the arrest of

Greta Goede, the maid who was taking care of the Reitman boy at the time of his kidnapping, and who formerly worked in Victoria, was issued in Montreal today.

The Greta Goede questioned by police here said she had never met the Reitmans and "somebody may be using my name."

After she was arrested here and charged in connection with the extortion case, Inspector Nimmo said: "She is the girl from Montreal."

He said she may be charged here in connection with the kidnapping and taken to Montreal later.

Inspector Nimmo said the extortion case here concerned the family of Arthur Cobham, in suburban York Township, for whom Mrs. Goede worked this spring.

He said a woman had "started sending letters of extortion demanding money." The first letter was received on the morning the woman started to work for the family.

Joel Reitman was left with an Ottawa taxi driver Monday night after three days' absence, during which time the kidnappers demanded a $10,000 ransom from his parents. The tot was back with his parents in Montreal today.

Mrs. Goede said earlier she had been staying with friends in Brampton since May 25 and had returned to her rented room here Monday night.

Police said they had questioned Mrs. Goede for several hours and compared handwriting on notes left at the Reitman home and the Cobham home.

The extortion notes to the Cobhams were reported to have threatened that their home would be burned down and their son killed if $2,500 was not put in a certain hiding place.

Traps were laid by police but no one turned up for the packages placed in various spots.

Mrs. Goede, who told reporters she had come to Canada shortly after her husband's death in 1950 also worked for the family of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Belber of Toronto.

"She was a wonderful worker," Mr. Belber said. "But one day she just left a note and quit."

"She kept the house immaculate," Mrs. Belber said. "I was very happy with her work."

Mrs. Goede said that after she came to Canada she worked in Edmonton, Dawson Creek, B.C., Fort Nelson, B.C., and Vancouver, as well as Victoria, before coming to Toronto.

Mild Cheers, Jeers, Yawns Greet Budget

By JOHN MIKA
A general yawn, broken by a smattering of cheers and one loud jeer, was Greater Victoria's response today to Finance Minister Donald Fleming's first budget.

Saanich municipality and flower growers were chief beneficiaries here under the fiscal changes, but British clothing retailers suffered a setback.

Bernard Shaw's manager, B. W. Storky, said the government's decision to increase the tariff on British textiles "is definitely a step in the wrong direction."

The tariff was raised from 50 cents a pound to 55 cents on heavy cloth and 60 cents on light material.

"A lot of cloth we get from Britain could not be manufactured here economically anyway, so it won't help the Canadian industry much," he said.

The increase will harm Canada's trade position "because British imports will suffer, but the Canadian industry will not be helped very much," said Mrs. R. G. H. Murray, manageress of Island Weavers Ltd., which imports all its cloth.

"But the increase shouldn't raise retail prices on British garments by more than 20 or 25 cents," she added.

Disappointment for Importer

Charles Watts, manager of the London Silk Co., another importer, said:

"I am disappointed even though it's not a serious increase. It's certainly not going to reduce the cost of living or alleviate the recession and it may wipe out the financial saving on clothing purchases by tourists here which is marginal."

Saving in Clerical Work

A leading bulb-grower, he added that a "tremendous saving" in clerical work will result.

Saanich Coun. George Cherterton estimated that abolition of sales tax on sewer and drainage materials may save the municipality $50,000 on a projected program.

The saving could result if ratepayers approve a $1,006,000 bylaw for a new sewer system in the Gordon Head area. But the tax change will not affect the $3,500,000 current sewer program in the Panhandle area.

The other three Greater Victoria municipalities will gain savings of a few hundred dollars on sewer replacement programs. Victoria's saving will run about $1,000 to $1,500 annually, it was estimated.

Tax Deductions Extended

Extension of tax deductions to cover medical diagnoses, prescriptions and glasses was welcomed by the various professions but the deductions will only apply where yearly bills exceed the present blanket deduction of $100 to all taxpayers for medical bills and charitable gifts.

One of the changes affecting the largest number of taxpayers involves revision of the gift tax as it applies to wives.

The new system will allow a husband to give his wife a tax-free $10,000 gift of property, but only once in his lifetime to his wife.

Trust company officials said this will simplify conclusive establishment of a wife's half-interest in a home when she is registered as a joint owner.

At present, she must prove she contributed half the purchase price with her own money or else the gift tax is levied when the tax department learns of the joint ownership or when the husband dies and the estate is being cleared through tax department channels.

"It means that a man buying a $20,000 house can register his wife as a joint owner without having to prove that she paid $10,000 out of her own money by making it a property gift to her," a trust official said. "In the past, it has been difficult to prove she contributed."

ESTATE TAX

Switching of succession duties to an estate tax based on the whole estate also was welcomed by the trust official as a "qualified improvement."

Under a bill scheduled for this session of the Commons, an estate of $50,000 left to a widow would be tax-exempt. The exemption would increase by $10,000 for each child under 21 in the family.

"However, the government should have gone further" in the gift and succession tax changes, he said.

Elimination of the federal sales tax on a small number of house-building materials such as plastic kitchen counters, fuel oil tanks, door knobs and hinges and some types of millwork was included in the budget.

But local builders said the changes would not reduce the costs of smaller homes by more than $40 or $50.

Increase of tax deductions allowed corporations for charitable gifts from 5 to 10 per cent of income was described as a "good move" by H. A. Wallace, president of the Greater Victoria Community Chest.

"But I wonder how many firms are giving even 5 per cent now?" he added.

A similar increase for gifts to educational institutions "will not affect us very much," said Judge J. E. Clearhugh, board chairman of Victoria College.

BUDGET

mainly this on personal income tax:

1. Deductibility of medical expenses is extended to include costs of prescribed drugs, eyeglasses, artificial eyes, ambulance costs and laboratory or other diagnostic services, effective immediately. However, medical expenses will continue to be deductible only when they exceed 3 per cent of income.

2. A husband may claim tax deductions for amounts paid for support of a wife or other dependents under a court order, even in the absence of a divorce or written separation agreement.

EXTEND CLAIM PERIOD

Also on income tax, the period for claiming tax refunds will be four years instead of two and interest on tax overpayments is increased to three per cent from two.

SEE RECESSION EASING

However, his actual spending—inside and outside the budget—will go well beyond the old record, because he has to take in the bill for universal old age pensions at 70, which will run to around $555,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Including pension outlays, the indication is for peak spending of $5,665,000,000.

On revenues, Mr. Fleming looked for $4,652,000,000, compared with $3,947,000,000 for the year ended last March 31.

The decline was attributed partly to tax cuts made last year and now and partly to an expected drop in corporation profits.

In his speech Mr. Fleming raised hopes that the recession may be ending.

He said to the House that with many industries over-expanded the Canadian business scene will generate less power toward new construction and expansion. But he said that a new period of Canadian business expansion will not be long delayed.

Meanwhile, Canadian energies could be devoted to providing more houses, municipal services and setting foundations for a new business cycle.

Mr. Fleming announced a prospective piece of legislation easing the death taxes on estates. It would exempt estates of up to $60,000 left to widows. Estates of $50,000 or more are taxed now.

Some other provisions:

1. The controversial excise tax

Shooting Erupts in Beirut As UN Officials Hold Meet

BEIRUT (CP) — Shooting broke out in Lebanon's tension-ridden capital again today as United Nations officials met to consider the deteriorating crisis.

Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, flying to the trouble spot, stopped briefly in London as the foreign-office disclosed members of the British community in Lebanon have been advised to send their wives and children out of the country.

London stopover but at that time insurgents in this capital who Tuesday night captured a women's prison, started shooting at nearby houses from the prison walls.

There was no immediate word on casualties. The army earlier had removed the women inmates from the prison.

The government was expected to ask Hammarskjöld for a UN emergency force to guard Lebanon's borders against United Arab Republic interference in the 5½-week rebellion against President Camille Chamoun.

BEFORE

Afternoon of Horror Described by Boatman

By KEN JOHNSTONE
As told to Canadian Press

VANCOUVER (CP) — I was due off shift at 4.30 p.m. My job was to patrol the stretch of water beneath the new Second Narrows Bridge. I was there to rescue any workmen who might fall from the bridge.

In the past month, since I became a boatman beneath the span, no one has fallen at all. This looked like being another routine day.

Then, just as I was positioning the little outboard motor-boat beneath the second from last constructed span, I heard a noise that sounded like thunder.

I immediately looked at the unsupported end of the bridge — I was 80 yards from it and saw it plunge into the water. Immediately, it seemed, the second span between two casements was pulled forward into the water. The whole collapse seemed to take only a few seconds.

I anticipated a wave-motion from the falling steel, and positioned myself to move in as quickly as possible. Twenty yards away a man was swimming in the water and trying to remove his life-jacket which hindered his swimming. I got him in the boat and took him to shore. Then the engine gave out and I had to row.

I went back and found a chap clutching a large plank. He was moaning and his left leg appeared to have been crushed.

Before returning the injured man to the bank, I saw one of the bridge's painters hanging 15 feet above the water by his safety line, which had become entangled with falling girders and ropes.

Three men lowered the painter down to the boat from the bridge. He was in pain. There was blood all over his face and his head was cut. I took both men back to the shore.

Then I went to the southern part of the fallen spans. Together with a number of rescuers I saw a man trapped beneath a tangle of girders. We tried to extricate him but we were unable to lift the heavy steel sections.

I went to a nearby bridge pier to get a man with burning apparatus. I ferried him back to the trapped man, returned to the pier and carried a number of other rescuers to the wreckage. The man was tightly wedged between the steel girders. I heard they got him out later — I do not know if he was dead. He was unconscious when I saw him.

I then took a skindiver to where one of the spans had crashed against the base of one of the buttresses. I stayed with him for a while. He found only a workman's helmet and I ferried him back to the shore with it. We were unable to identify the workman, though.

I went home then. It was 6 p.m.

Tug Serves As Bier For Bridge Victims

VANCOUVER (CP) — The deck of a tug served as a bier for 10 of the 14 bodies dragged from Burrard Inlet following the collapse of the new Second Narrows Bridge.

As frogmen and police recovered the dead they took them aboard launches and rowboats which carried them to the tug. On the tug's deck, some were piled two deep. Some were left uncovered.

From the tug, workmen, stripped to the waist in the 80-degree weather, their arms covered in blood, lifted the bodies into ambulances, hearses from

'LIVING HELL'

Worker Caught Beneath Water

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man who was working at the very end of the half-completed Second Narrows Bridge Tuesday when it collapsed into Burrard Inlet, told today how he was trapped in the half-submerged wreckage as the tide rose around him.

'HORRIBLE'

5 Minutes On Job—Then Crash

VANCOUVER (CP) — It was Don Gardiner's first assignment to the outermost section of Vancouver's new Second Narrows bridge.

He was on top and at the end of the outermost span. Five minutes after he started work the bridge collapsed.

"It was horrible," said Gardiner, 24. "Everything happened in a split second."

"The steel seemed to drop about five feet, then dropped a little bit again, and then fell into the water."

Gardiner was among eight injured taken to North Vancouver General Hospital.

Anthony Romaniuk, a painter who had been clearing rust from one of the girders, was strapped to the girder when it collapsed, falling about 100 feet. He was held fast under 10 feet of water.

"I thought I was drowning; I kept telling myself not to panic," he said. "I was buckled to the steel by my safety belt."

"I knew I had to get the belt off as fast as I could and I just forced myself out of it and somehow got to the surface."

Facts, Figures On New Bridge

By The Canadian Press

Construction of the Second Narrows bridge over Burrard Inlet started in February, 1956. Cost $16,000,000.

Length, with approaches, two miles.

Height at centre span 200 feet.

Designed for six-lane traffic. Contractors main section Dominion Bridge Company Ltd. Cost of main section $11,100,000.

Contractors approaches Peter Kiewit and Sons, Vancouver. Cost of approaches approximately $4,000,000.

Engineers Swan, Wooster and partners.

Accidents: In earlier construction mishaps four workmen were killed.

Completion had been planned for this fall with the official opening early in 1959.

Catastrophe, John D's Reaction

OTTAWA (CP) — Works Minister Green said Tuesday night Canadians everywhere "have been 'deeply shocked' by the Vancouver bridge disaster."

In a statement, Mr. Green said the tragedy is a "reminder of the dangers always faced in construction work and of the courage of these men who play such a great part in developing our country."

Later in the Commons, Prime Minister Diefenbaker referred to the collapse as a "catastrophe." He said all members of the House extended sympathy to the survivors of the victims.

Opposition Leader Pearson and Harold Winch (CCF, Vancouver East) also extended their sympathies. Mr. Winch said the tragedy hit him very deeply as the bridge was located in his constituency.

Negotiations Fail

BERLIN (UPI) — Negotiations broke down today between U.S. Army officers and East German officials over the release of nine American servicemen held by the East German Communists.

A Disappointing Budget

IN ITS FIRST BUDGET THE Diefenbaker Government announces three basic decisions. First, it will restrict the sale of British woollens—Britain's largest export to the Canadian market—and apparently will apply various import restrictions elsewhere. Second, it has repudiated within a year its promise of drastic economies and tax reductions. Third, it will take no significant physical measures to stimulate the national economy, hoping that the recession will soon begin to lift.

Of these three policies, all negative, the Government's decision to revive the traditional Conservative principle of tariff protection is most important. In the vital test case of British woollens the Government has come to the aid of a non-economic Canadian textile industry at the expense of the Canadian consumer and the British exporters.

Mr. Macmillan is no sooner out of Ottawa than Canada delivers a brutal blow against British business—and this from the Government which has always professed to be Britain's real friend. The blow, moreover, is delivered a few hours after Mr. Diefenbaker has uttered a passionate appeal for increased trade with Britain. Thus the Prime Minister speaks in one voice, his budget in another. Such is the ironic prelude to the Commonwealth Trade Conference.

The Government's protectionist policy is aimed first and specifically against Britain, only British woollens being subject to higher tariffs at the moment, but it does not stop there. New so-called "anti-dumping" regulations are so open-ended and give the Cabinet so much power to fix tariffs arbitrarily that no one can foresee the ultimate result.

There can be no doubt, however, that the Government, while repeatedly urging an expansion of world trade, is planning to restrict it in the Canadian market to an unknown degree.

The second decision, to abandon the promise of economy and tax reduction, is not surprising. Having pledged itself to cut running expenses and taxes by a billion dollars a year, the Government has raised its expenditures by about a billion dollars and admits an estimated deficit this year of $648 million. Adding the expenditures on current and capital account not included in the budget figures, it is evident that the real deficit will be at least a billion, possibly more.

By these massive expenditures and deficits the Government has itself destroyed the chance of significant tax reductions.

Instead of the relief to the extent of half a billion, as promised, the taxpayer will benefit by some two millions, most of it granted last Autumn. The new tax cuts announced last night are too small to have any effect on the national economy of the individual citizen. The nation will be fortunate in fact if the Government's current commitments do not compel it to raise taxes later on when the recession is over.

In its third decision the Government assumes that the recession will soon be over. Hence it adds little or nothing to the measures already adopted to stimulate the economy by public works that can have no large effect on employment for a long time to come.

Behind a budget which must be considered one of the most disappointing in our history the Government's economic conclusions are obviously confused. Mr. Fleming cannot make up his mind as to whether the nation's great danger is inflation or deflation so he does little about either. It will be noted, however, that after attacking the former Government for its anti-inflation policy the finance minister now declares that inflation is extremely dangerous. Yet his huge borrowings this year will certainly tend to stimulate inflation if they do not stimulate the economy.

Mr. Fleming's reasoning is so contradictory that the budget must be regarded as a tentative approach only to the recession, a stop-gap of conflicting policies subject to amendment later on when the economic climate is clearer.

On one point, minor in terms of money but major in terms of principle, the Government is to be congratulated. It is the repeal of the tax on Canadian editions of American magazines which was one of the Liberal Government's most notable blunders and a regrettable restriction on the flow of information. The abolition of this iniquitous levy is the only ray of light in an otherwise gloomy or negative budget.

A Province Grieves

BRITISH COLUMBIA HAS BEEN shocked by the Second Narrows bridge tragedy. A calamity of this nature, costing at least 16 lives, stirs our people deeply.

The public wants to know why the span under construction collapsed and if the fault lay in some human error.

These are natural questions. Premier Bennett has acted speedily in his call for a complete investigation. He has chosen Chief Justice Sherwood Lett to conduct the inquiry and in so doing has selected a man who has the confidence of all people in the province.

Until that inquiry is completed—and it will doubtless be unrestricted in its extent—it is futile to comment on the question of responsibility.

The hearings will be watched closely by a public which, at this time, must confine its concern to those families bereaved by this crushing accident. To them universal sympathy is extended.

Manitoba 'Follows John'

THE CONSERVATIVE VICTORY in Manitoba is not surprising. Mr. Duff Roblin and his supporters were floated in on the Conservative tide set in motion by Mr. Diefenbaker.

Nor is it surprising that the Liberal-Progressives of Mr. Campbell should have lost ground to trail the leaders in Monday's poll by seven seats. The defeated government, headed at different times by three premiers, had been in office a record number of years. It was old. The electors wanted a change.

Mr. Campbell has no reason to feel ashamed. He had given Manitoba excellent, if pedestrian, government. With some justification, if paradoxically, he was attacked by Mr. Roblin for being too conservative.

The change indicated in the election will be largely one of house-keeping in Winnipeg. No radical political developments are to be expected, though Mr. Roblin, a young man of ability and family political tradition, will doubtless spend more on public services than his predecessor.

For the purposes of administration, it is regrettable that he has been denied an over-all majority. The voters on Monday seemed reluctant in their support. Forty per cent of the popular vote gave the Conservatives the largest minority and hence Manitoba faces an unstable administration for the first time in years.

Contributing to that instability and providing the most spectacular feature of the election was the resurgence of the CCF. With 11 seats, more than double the number held in the last House, that party assumes a position of unusual importance and has scored an achievement in sharp contrast to the Manitoba failure of the CCF in the federal election.

But if the people of Manitoba provided unexpected support for the third party, they turned their backs completely on Social Credit, eliminating the splinter group which had held two seats in the previous legislature. This is another rebuff which will be noted particularly in the western provinces.

CLOSER AND CLOSER

By B. A. TOBIN

One Crowded Hour

THEY'RE closing in on us. Slowly but surely the evidence is piling up, and pretty soon we won't be able to pretend any longer that we don't notice it. It's getting too crowded, and we may as well face it. Every day or so, confirming the things our eyes have seen, comes further proof that the open spaces of our globe are filling up, the crush of humanity is growing heavier, the standing room only sign is going up in one place after another. And the globe's residents, finding it harder and harder to move without rubbing elbows, stepping on toes and bumping psychoses, are feeling increasingly restive. Things are approaching a climax.

Tobin

I remember once reading an article on the far north which told of a old-time trapper who dwelt beside a river few people had ever heard of and fewer still had seen. One day he got word that he had a neighbor. Somebody had moved into the territory and taken up residence about eighty miles downstream from him.

The old fellow flew into a rage, declared he wasn't going to stand for this overcrowding, packed up his belongings and took off for the deeper wilderness. He knew a threat when he saw it and he was taking no chances.

Close Quarters

Well, much the same reaction appeared in the news the other day. Only this time it was from the other extreme. Some poor fellow in Des Moines, Iowa, bought ads in the local paper to blow his top in public. And his problem was much more acute than that of the trapper.

This fellow has suddenly awakened to the fact that he is surrounded. He probably lives on a street like hundreds of other nearby streets, in a house like hundreds of other nearby houses, 30-foot frontage, patch of lawn in front, room for a drive at the side, TV antenna on the roof and a 20-year mortgage in the top bureau drawer.

Now that patch of lawn has to be cut periodically—all those patches do. And, naturally, they have to be cut with power mowers because—well, all the neighbors have one, haven't they?

So what happens? Of all those hundreds of power mowers, concentrated in that neighborhood, one is running at almost any given time. Hardly a moment, from dawn to dark, is free of the sound of a power mower somewhere around the block. And it's driving that poor Des Moines fellow crazy.

He paid for an advertisement to tell his neighbors that "I think the noise of a power lawn mower is a hideous invasion of the peace and quiet of my home. On every side of my small property these machines are popping, putter-ing, snarling, roaring at me. They attack alone, in pairs or in herds. . . . You get the idea. Just like out your way, maybe?

Now what that fellow proposes is that all the people in the neighborhood get together and decide on a single hour in which to mow their lawns. Then all the power mowers can be turned on at the same time, blast peace and quiet to shreds in one united roar, and be finished for a few days at least.

I don't know whether to wish him luck or not. For even if he wins this round, the encirclement will still go on.

Once the power mower question is settled, there'll be the matter of loud radios and TV sets. Once agreement is reached on that menace, there'll be other problems—stomping doors, kitchen sounds, scratchy pen nibs, snoring, heavy breathing and the rustling of twiddled thumbs.

Nearer to Thee

As we get more and more crowded, as prefab walls get thinner and thinner, as the inevitable congestion of the world is driven relentlessly into our consciousness, things are going to get worse.

It's going to become harder and harder to pretend that you have a house of your own. Your life is going to become more and more intertwined with those of your neighbors.

Pretty soon you'll be answering your wife in the next room and find that you've answered Mrs. Jones in the next house. You'll sneeze, and a neighbor two houses down will look up from his evening paper and absently murmur "Gesundheit!"

You'll go to bed when you hear the Smiths' lock their front door, and wake up with the alarm clock beside Brown's bed in the house behind you.

The sociologists' figures of future millions and billions of population mean nothing really. You don't get even an inkling of their significance until they are reduced to reasonable size—say, two or three, representing your neighbor's household.

Worse to Come

That Des Moines fellow thinks it's bad now. Wait until the population of the globe has tripled, quintupled, increased ten or twenty-fold; wait until a hundred million power mowers are ready to march at dawn; when the 50-foot frontage of today will seem in retrospect like unimaginable acreage to the jam-packed citizens of the pea-pod communities of tomorrow; when every corner is a traffic jam and every street a clogged, immovable mass of abandoned cars.

That's when this planet will know what crowding is, and the only relief will be out in space. Already I notice that there are long lists of people willing to take a chance on the first flight to the moon. Like that far northern trapper, they can take a hint.

As Our Readers See It

'True to Form'

Apparently Dr. Brock Chisholm, grand champion for racial integration, in his comparison of pigs and people, and the raising of same June 9, is running true to form. Weekend magazine has previously reported him as saying: "Canada should start a geographic adoption program of children from other countries. It would be a very good side effect too, if the children had brown or yellow skins. As far as I am concerned the sooner we are all interbred, the better."

C. M. CADWALLADER

Back to Ottawa

These are paradoxical times for the unemployed, especially those of us who read the papers.

Take your paper, for example. A short time ago you noted the healthy state of the British economy, particularly its gold and dollar reserves. Very good news in view of the downturn here.

The other day you complimented Mr. Diefenbaker on his Montreal speech in which he attributed the Canadian recession to world conditions, not to any policy, or lack of policy, in Ottawa, past or present.

Now the paradox is this: If the world economy is as sick as Mr. Diefenbaker contends it to be why is it that the British economy isn't ailing? After all the U.K. is more in concert with the world market than we are. Yet today there's less unemployment in Britain than in Canada.

Even the French economy is performing remarkably well. Output is up almost 9 per cent over last year, and this despite the political floundering in Paris. As for the West German economy, it's fabulously active by all accounts. And if the Russian economy was breaking down the kind of economic war Mr. Diefenbaker is now warning us about, True, the Indians are having trouble, but it isn't the conventional type of economic illness we know of here.

So where is the economic sickness that's keeping a half million jobless in Canada?

Clearly, the only ones left to blame are the Americans. They take the rap for a lot of things, so why not pin them with this one also.

But if we do, Washington can conceivably retort: Canada ought to be able to run its own baby engine without too much difficulty. The U.S. economy happens to be a massive mechanism, at least a hundred times more complex. Besides, Canada is almost an underdeveloped country with a small population and has lots of things to do.

All of which would pitch the argument back into Ottawa's lap—where it rightly belongs. For the time is long overdue for a cold, clear-cut analysis.

Before the last election Lester Pearson proposed what seemed to me the only concrete and logical cure so far advanced, namely, a massive injection of purchasing power through tax cuts. It was logical in so far as it was a direct projection of the Liberal post-war policy of cyclical budgeting, initiated by Mr. Abbott and carried through by Mr. Harris, both of whom applied the formula successfully.

Mr. Diefenbaker appears to be doing nothing about the situation, save making vague speeches placing the blame on the world's doorstep. He's got the whole world in his hand except the remedy to pull the Canadian economy out of the ditch.

UNEMPLOYED.

East Sooke Centennial

The hope of a visit from a fairy princess was of course out of the question, but there was a hope of some really worthwhile memorial of this Centennial year in this little old corner of Vancouver Island.

Something must have gone very awry since the residents were advised that the East Sooke area would receive a modest contribution of $100 from the Centennial Fund if the same was matched by the residents.

However no approach has been made to the old-time residents therefore some pixies must have got to work and re-roofed—or repaired—the Farmers' Institute Hall with some shingles which must have been donated by someone who is neither a property owner or taxpayer in the district, but who was kindly helped by an arranged working bee, as an imaginary type of Centennial memorial. The shingles are aged, and so is the hall, but that fact could hardly carry any sentiment whatsoever, much less a pleasant reminder of a Centennial year.

It would be very interesting to the real residents of East Sooke—properly to be recognized as interested parties in this commemoration of the "march of time." Surely the whole idea was not intended entirely for opportunists—or was it?

FROM BORDJ MENAIEL, ALGERIA

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Blank Day

ON the young Major's face, the day's events had incised deep lines. They were not lines of fatigue, for he was climbing the steep mountainside in the cruel late afternoon sun like a particularly wiry and heat-proof goat. They were lines of disappointment. "Hunting Yel-laghas," he remarked, "is like hunting wild boar. You organize a magnificent battle, and you can still have a blank day, like today. With fewer beaters, you may get a big bag. In one day and in one operation last week, we got eighty of them. Like bears, they can be very dangerous to the man who drives out the game. But there's not a man on this damn blank day who would not have preferred the risk of finding game to the blank day we've had."

Alsop

The major's sombre remarks are a good operational summary of the grand battue in the forest of the Kabyle country, which this reporter saw, as the guest of the second battalion of the ninth regiment of Infanterie Marine.

An operation without casualties except from sunstroke (of which there were several) may seem a little undramatic. But the story of the day will at least give an idea of how the French Army in Algeria carries on its unending hunt.

Dinner last night in the little officers' mess here in Bordj Menaïel was like an evening meal in a hunting camp. The talk was of past hunts, unsuccessful and successful, with enough stories of the latter to make it clear the fellagha did not lead an easy life.

Before the Battle

A little Indo-Chinese war orphan, who was brought to the mess by the old captain who had adopted him, wanted to offer his usual after-dinner entertainment—the French manual of arms performed by a smiling five-year-old. But takeoff hour was 1.30 a.m., so the usual entertainment was tenderly cut short.

Four hours' sleep, a quick wash and shave (for the officers of the Infanterie Marine are not sloppy in the field), coffee and bread hastily gulped down—and then the battalion column forms with the ease of long practice and with not light to show the men and vehicles their places except the curious, milky luminescence of the soft Algerian night.

The old captain is almost late. "The child was fretful," he muttered apologetically. But the long column moves off on time, with armored half-tracks, officers' command jeeps and big trucks full of troops all in review order.

Hour after hour, always with no lights, the column winds slowly upwards over tracks that would not make pleasant daytime driving. One is hardly conscious of anything except the night-sharpened smells of road dust and wild lavender.

Then, just at dawn, the assembly point is reached on a craggy shelf where the vehicles are left behind.

Maps are checked. The major in command co-ordinates times, places, telephone codes and all the rest, with his nard-bitten looking company officers. The companies set out, each in single file, through the gnarled olive and fig trees on the steep mountain flanks.

It is a long, grim, breathless climb, even to the first battalion command post. But the men of the companies must push down from crests where the CP is set up. They must search the slopes that often have an angle of close to 50 degrees, to their destined forward positions.

These are the mountains that gave birth to Krim Bel Kacem, one of the high command of the FLN. The forest of Tamedjout, more scrub than forest, lies in a violently contorted fold of these mountains, with a drop sharply downwards to a water course a full 400 meters below the CP's crest.

We are high enough to look down on the great white buzzards that float with effortless grace on an ocean of air far below us. Yet far above our crests are the towering crags of the Djurdjura range, still bearing traces of snow although the temperature on our own mountaintop is pushing up towards 100 degrees by 8 a.m.

Net Is Closed

Our battalion companies today are the hunters. Three more battalions, starting from other crests, are the beaters in this hunt. By 8 a.m. the net is closed, the link-up is complete. So we of the CP make the long march to our forward position, sweating under a sun already terrible, and thinking guiltily of the companies that cannot halt, as we shall halt.

That, really, is the whole day's story. But all day long under a sun ever-gnawing in cruel intensity the net is methodically drawn tighter and tighter. Lajoie (the colonel in over all command), Lamouette (our own commander) and the other battalion CP's keep up an endless, tense radio conversation with one another and with their companies, to make sure there are no holes in the ever-tightening net.

So the long day passes, with thirst growing always more obsessive with the sun beating down more and more remorselessly, with the hunters and the beaters toiling onwards.

But the fellagha band that usually hides out in the forest of Tamedjout must have a cave the beaters missed, or they must have moved off towards the Djurdjura.

Professional Job

"Pas de gibier"—"no game here"—is the final bitter verdict. Yet it has been a lesson to watch the operation all the same, because of its toughly professional character, and because, in all this long, gruelling day, I never heard more than a word of sardonically joking complaint from the men who must do this sort of thing day after day and week and week after week, until their service ends.

"It's a hell of a life," said the old captain, when he led in his grimly sweat-bathed company after a return climb up the 400 meters of mountain face. "But I would still rather have our life than a fellagha's life. We'll get them next time. Wait and see."

Russia Demobilizes

NEW YORK—How many men does the Soviet Union have under arms?

Recent American reports, including one that came out a few days ago from the U.S. defence department, give a figure of 4,000,000. On the other hand, American and Canadian disarmament men last year were saying that the Russians had apparently carried out their stated manpower reductions and that their forces were probably down below 3,000,000. In fact, a Canadian official told me last year that the Russian total might even be lower than the Americans' 2,500,000.

There's a differential here of a million or even a million and a half men and this is a most important matter because the American public is being told that nuclear relaxation would be dangerous as long as the West is faced by overwhelming conventional forces.

Well, do the Soviets have overwhelming numerical superiority or don't they?

I telephoned Canadian disarmament experts here and called the Soviet Mission to the United Nations.

The answer to the question seems to be, I was told, that the Pentagon figures are typical military estimates, conservative and presumably verified by Intelligence. Some non-military men, however, are inclined to think that reductions have been greater than Pentagon figures indicate.

But they can't prove it. Presumably some military men also think that Soviet forces are below 4,000,000 but they can't prove it either.

The Russians aren't saying. Premier Khrushchev was asked last year in an interview and he said he didn't know. He hadn't asked Marshal Zhukov, he said. I spoke to the Soviet Mission and was told that the U.S.S.R. had not published a figure for its armed forces.

NO KEY FIGURE

They claim, however, to have made reductions totalling 2,140,000 since 1955 but, as is so often the case with Russian statistics, they don't give the key figure. In this case they don't say what we really want to know—how many men they have under arms now.

However, a figure of 4,600,000 was commonly given some three years ago. If the Russians have actually carried out the reductions they claim, this would put them on a parity with the Americans at about 2,500,000.

The non-military disarmament men I talked to today were inclined to think that the Russians have carried out substantial reductions. There are several reasons for thinking this.

One is the fact that the Russians have told their own people that they are demobilizing. As one disarmament man said:

"Even in Russia, if you make announcements like that you must produce something. There's almost no one in the Soviet Union who doesn't have a relative in the Soviet armed forces. Eventually they begin to wonder, 'Where is Ivan? When is Boris coming home?'"

Perhaps more important, there is a labor shortage in Russia and the system can probably use manpower to better avail in civilian life.

LESSON WELL LEARNED

This is one thing which the disarmament men stress—Russian striking force isn't lessened just because they demobilize one or two million men. This is the age of small, mobile, hard-hitting armies and the Russians seem to have learned this lesson well. In fact, senior U.S. officers have said that some Russian equipment is superior to American.

So where do we go from here in disarmament?

Last year, the two sides came very close to agreement on a first stage agreement. Then talks broke down and the Russians walked out of the UN Disarmament Commission. However, there were hopes that this year would see some sort of agreement reached.

Is there any hope? East-West technical discussions are being arranged and disarmament men are hopeful they'll come to pass. Most of them here at the UN appear to agree with the secretary-general that, although these talks at this stage will be outside the UN, they'll return to the world organization.

There's cautious optimism at the UN that 1958 will be the year of the breakthrough, some sort of breakthrough.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Those Post-War Credits

LONDON—Somewhere in a trunk I have several slips of paper on which is the information that the British government owes me a total of a couple of hundred dollars. Along with some 12 million other people I've kept these bits of paper in the hope that some day the government would make amends for what has often been described as the gigantic swindle.

The bits of paper are my post-war credits, issued to me by the government of this country when they were taking my income tax as a war correspondent here from Canada. The promise during those war years was that I would be paid back the money. The years have gone by and almost everybody here has written them off as duds, but now it looks as though the government is likely to pay up.

The postwar credit scheme was started in 1941 as compulsory savings. What happened was that in paying for the war the government had pushed income tax so high that it was felt that it was just not possible to raise it any further.

So the government got around that by tagging a bit more income tax on in the name of savings. They were just borrowing that bit, to pay it back when the war was over.

But from 1946 (when the scheme stopped) onwards no government that came to power, Socialist or Conservative, managed to make good that wartime pledge and part with the more than $2,000 million that had been garnered that way.

Constant moans of "swindle!" from the public did loosen some of the money. Old age pensioners have been allowed to cash their credit slips. But those not in their 60s had come to look upon it as a huge confidence trick.

Some people got so annoyed about it that they decided to bounce their postwar credits back at the government. When paying their income tax they deducted the value of their credits from their payments, and attached the slips of paper to their returns.

But the inland revenue people wouldn't go for that one and back came the apparently worthless credit slips with the demand for cash, please.

But now it seems that they might not prove worthless—thanks, indirectly, to the American recession. Prime Minister Macmillan has stated that if the U.S. state of affairs should be reflected over here in a big way and wind up as a depression "we have our plans ready."

And part of these plans would be the unfreezing of the postwar credits—priming the pump by putting extra money into circulation.

This has set millions of people here wondering what they've done with those bits of paper, and this also applies to thousands of British immigrants in Canada.

But you needn't worry if you've lost these credit slips that amount in some cases to over a thousand dollars. The tax people have long memories (don't we know it!) and they'll pay you from their records—if and when the great payoff does come.

SYNOPSIS—There is no indication of an end to the hot spell. A little moisture has crept into the air at high levels in eastern districts, and in consequence in those areas there will be some afternoon cloudiness which should lower temperatures slightly. Along the coast there is little chance of much cooling today but by Thursday a shallow layer of air from the ocean will bring brief morning cloud-to-a few places and cool things down a little.				54	75

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Midsummer Day's Problems

It is by midsummer (the longest day is only three days away!) that bare, dry spots are apt to become apparent in some gardens.

What to do with them? Wallflowers and spring bulbs do well for the early part of the year when sufficient moisture is still in the soil. The problem is usually from June through the rest of the year.

Some of the most brilliant of annuals may be planted to give color until fall. Mesembryanthemums (Livingstone daisy) or dimorphotheca (South African daisy) will always excite comment.

Both may be quickly raised from seed, the former producing an amazing assortment of colors and the dimorphotheca every conceivable shade of yellow and orange.

For a permanent planting on a sunny, dry slope, cistus (the rock-rose) and cytisus (broom) hybrids can be used effectively. As an under-planting to these shrubby subjects, helianthemums (sun-roses) would provide a permanent green cover, spangled with rose, white, yellow and red.

It is a mistake to believe that these, or any other, plants will become established in dry soil without a certain amount of moisture being supplied artificially.

Once they get their feet in, however, you, reward will be in continuous summer bloom, followed by interesting cover for the winter months. Some species of cistus are evergreen, and the cytisus retains its dark green stems throughout winter.

Now is the time to make plans for those difficult garden spots which have been annoying. Written notes will be helpful later.

Battle Looms For Leadership Of B.C. Tories

By PETE LOUDON

The B.C. Progressive Conservative leadership contest slated for Sept. 11 to 13 in Vancouver may be shaping into the major political battle of 1958.

Two, perhaps three contenders are planning now to challenge the supremacy of Deane Finlayson.

Many local Tories are counting on a lively tussle, and they are not altogether sure the present champion will emerge with his laurels intact.

Until recently, there were hopes in some quarters that Federal Justice Minister David Fulton would resign his Ottawa post to try for the provincial

Anscomb Often Mentioned

Local party members are betting a third name will be entered soon—that of Herbert Anscomb, a former British Columbia attorney-general, former British Columbia minister of public works, former Victoria mayor and former Oak Bay reeve.

Speculation with regard to Mr. Anscomb's candidacy recently when he appeared at an Oak Bay Conservative Club meeting on the night the strict-torn club was reorganized.

Years Few, Ability Strong

On the other end of the scale, He expressed a high regard for Gowan Guest, a Vancouver lawyer, is reported to be "barely 30". But friends say what he lacks in years he makes up in vitality and ability. As provincial president of the party he is well known, and he has proven his executive abilities.

His tact is demonstrated in his announcement of candidacy.

'All Shades of Opinion'

"Secondly, I am allowing my name to stand because I have been urged to do so by persons representative of all shades of Conservative party opinion.

"I find a general feeling that our party must abandon its old habit of groups and factions, and look only to the future."

No criticism, no bombast—a statement that might draw support from even Finlayson people. But it subtly reminds that Mr. Finlayson led the revolt of provincial Conservatives, and the split of 1955 hurt the party.

Mr. Dewdney, 42, Cominco solicitor and Tadanac municipal clerk, said he had been asked to stand for nomination. He is considering the move, and will announce his decision "shortly."

Defeated in the March 1 federal election by H. W. Herridge, CCF, he showed wide support in the Kootenay West federal riding. An RCN veteran, and past president of the B.C. Young Progressive Conservatives, he has also held executive posts in local Conservative groups and is a past member of the national executive.

The leadership contest assures a strong representation of B.C. constituency groups at the convention in Vancouver. However, there is a strong appeal also in the fact provincial policy is slated for remodeling also at the meeting.

At a recent provincial executive meeting in Victoria, it was

Strong Swing To Protection For Industry

Budget Stresses Higher Tariffs, Powerful Anti-Dumping Measures

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming, who says he isn't worried about retaliation from other countries, has embarked on a policy of boosting tariff protection for Canadian industry.

Without consulting with Britain, he has imposed higher tariffs on wool cloth imported from that country, effective immediately. And he has put into immediate effect changes in rates on steel and iron, pipes and tubes and zinc products which, he says, should lead to increased fabrication in Canada of some of these products.

But perhaps the most far-reaching change, announced in his first full budget Tuesday night, is the Progressive Conservatives' decision to reintroduce anti-dumping laws created by the Conservative government of 1930-35 and shelved by the Liberals soon after they took office in 1942.

Under a bill to be brought before Parliament shortly, the government will seek to apply import-restricting dumping duties on any product sold at a price considered to be less than the cost of production plus a "reasonable" amount for profit.

The present criterion for assessing dumping duties against low-priced imports is whether the imported price is the same as the selling price in the home market. If it is, then no extra government charges are imposed.

However, Mr. Fleming made clear this policy of the former Liberal government is to be thrown out. If a country tries to ship goods into Canada at below cost, then the government will move to impose extra duties—about the imported price and make it easier for Canadian manufacturers to compete.

Tougher Duties Aimed at U.S.

Meeting with reporters after presenting his budget, Mr. Fleming declined to say what impact this policy will have on consumer prices. But he said the tougher dumping duties will be used on high-cost countries, such as the United States, and not on low-cost countries, such as those in underdeveloped areas.

It is understood from officials that the new dumping rule would be applied mainly on textiles shipped from the United States.

A reporter asked whether it could be applied on low-priced oil from Venezuela, reported to be entering Eastern Canada some times at below cost. Mr. Fleming said he didn't know about the oil situation, but that the policy could be applicable on all products.

Most extensive were tariff revisions in basic steel and iron. All of the drawbacks—parts of tariffs returned to importers when imports are used for specific purposes—were eliminated. Some items were revised up wards and others downwards. The main effect was to aid Canadian producers, to help them spread into new production fields.

Tariffs on pipes used for gas pipelines were boosted to 10 per cent from five on imports from Britain and to 15 from 7½ on imports from the U.S.

Zinc tariffs were revised up and down, unchanged "in balance" but imposing a rate of 7½ per cent on previously duty-free imports from the U.S. to "encourage additional fabrication in Canada."

Canada has started negotiations with the U.S. to revise tariffs on fresh fruits and vegetables. And the tariff board is being asked to recommend what should be done about tariffs on imports of rubber footwear.

Fleming Warns Americans

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times-Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Fleming sounded a solemn warning to the United States in his budget speech. Speaking about the damage caused Canadian interests by U.S. agricultural policies, he said:

"If the Americans persist with measures adding to Canada's difficulties in selling either abroad or in the U.S., it will impair our ability and willingness to import from them."

He said the Canadian government finds it hard to understand why the U.S. should treat its best customer and friendly neighbor in this way.

Fish Industry Disappointed

OTTAWA (CP)—A spokesman for the Canadian fishing industry expressed disappointment Tuesday night that Finance Minister Fleming's budget speech made no reference to the industry and "did little to improve its position."

C. Gordon O'Brien, manager of the Fisheries Council of Canada, said in a statement that while a few "minor changes" were granted in the customs tariff as requested by the industry, these changes were "simply of a type calculated to bring Canadian rates into line with United States rates."

Canada Wants to Keep 'Preferences' System

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will propose retention of the existing system of Commonwealth trade preference at the forthcoming Commonwealth trade conference, Finance Minister Fleming said Tuesday night.

In a section devoted to Commonwealth trade, he told the Commons Canada will not propose a new system of preferences.

Mr. Fleming, making no direct references to Britain's standing proposal for the gradual achievement of free trade with Canada, listed his government's objectives for the conference as these:

1. Expansion of the opportunities for trade between Canada and the other Commonwealth countries, with a hope that "progress can be made in removing restrictions and discriminations which are imposed against us."
2. More rapid progress towards currency convertibility and a freer system of world trade and payments.
3. Measures to assist in the economic development of Commonwealth countries, particularly the newer ones.
4. Extension of Commonwealth institutions to contribute more effectively to joint economic and political strength as barrier against communism.

He said the minister promised protection to Canadian textile producers against any type of "dumping" but removed the protection against "the dumping of editorial contents into Canada."

He said he expects that several foreign magazines will proceed with plans for Canadian editions and that all Canadian publications that seek to serve the Canadian public with news and ideas are going to suffer from this diversion of the Canadian dollar," he said.

BUDGET SPEECH was delivered Tuesday night in two hours and one minute by Finance Minister Donald Fleming—without a single stop for a drink of water. But marathons are nothing new for the 33-year-old minister. His favorite recreation is long distance swimming.

Working Wife Remembered By Fleming

OTTAWA (CP)—The taxpayer with a wife who herself earns more than $1,000 a year Tuesday night received a modest income tax reduction.

At present, when a wife's income just passes the $1,000 mark, the husband's exemption in respect of his wife drops abruptly by $250.

Finance Minister Fleming said in his budget speech that in future, starting with this calendar year, the decrease in the husband's exemption will not be more than the amount by which the wife's income exceeds $1,000.

The wife will still have to file a separate return when her income exceeds $1,000.

'LUMP-SUM' DUTY SYSTEM FOR OVERSEAS

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians who can afford to spend 14 days or more overseas will soon be able to come home with up to $300 worth of duty-free souvenirs or other goods once a year.

In announcing the proposed change in the so-called "tourist clause" of Canada's Customs Act, Finance Minister Fleming said it is to become effective July 1.

It doesn't change the total worth of goods that a Canadian travelling outside this country can bring home in a year.

And it applies only to Canadians visiting outside continental North America. Thus a Canadian visiting the U.S. or Mexico will still be able to bring back only $100 worth of duty-free goods at a time from a visit of 48 hours or longer no oftener than once every four months.

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming today was accused of being "inconsistent" in repealing the controversial 20 per cent excise tax on advertising in Canadian editions of non-Canadian periodicals.

The charge came from Floyd S. Chalmers, president of Maclean-Hunter Publishing Company, Canada's largest magazine publishers.

"All Canadian publications that seek to serve the Canadian public with news and ideas are going to suffer from this diversion of the Canadian dollar," he said.

He said the minister promised protection to Canadian textile producers against any type of "dumping" but removed the protection against "the dumping of editorial contents into Canada."

BUDGET HIGHLIGHTS

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of Finance Minister Fleming's budget speech:

No change in personal or corporation income tax rates.

Budget deficit for 1958-59 peacetime record of $648,000,000, compared with $39,400,000 last year.

Minor tax cuts total $8,000,000 for remainder of current year, $26,000,000 in full year.

Peacetime record expenditures of $3,300,000,000 and revenues falling to $4,032,000,000 forecast.

Government to borrow an estimated $1,400,000,000 in new money this year to cover budget deficit and federal loans.

Tax-deductible medical expenses to include prescription medicines, spectacles, diagnosis, effective immediately.

No changes in tax on automobiles, tobacco products, liquor, radio and TV sets.

Tax deductibility of charitable gifts by corporations doubled to maximum 10 per cent of income effective Jan. 1, 1958.

Once-in-a-lifetime gift tax exemption on real estate transfers of up to $10,000 between husband and wife, or farmer and child, effective this year.

Canadian tourists abroad allowed to bring back after July 1 duty-free purchases of up to $300 a year, lumping in one trip present allowance of $100 every four months.

Tax deductibility provided for husband paying for support of wife or dependent children under court order.

Emergency gold mining assistance boosted by 25 per cent to about $12,000,000 annually, starting with 1958.

Excise tax of 20 per cent on advertising in special Canadian editions of non-Canadian periodicals repealed, effective immediately.

Tariffs on imports of wool cloth from Britain boosted from present 50 cents a pound to 55 and 60, effective immediately.

Government to tighten anti-dumping laws sharply.

Tariffs revised upwards and downwards on basic iron and steel, pipes and tubes, zinc and other products.

Municipalities given $5,000,000 annual relief from 10 per cent sales tax on some purchases, effective immediately.

CMA Head Raps Failure to Use 'Tax Cut Tonic'

BY FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

A few bursts of applause and some sharp calls of criticism marked initial reaction to Tuesday night's budget.

Perhaps the most outspoken criticism came from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Ian F. McRae, CMA's president, said the budget was "like the curate's egg—good only in parts."

On the "good" side, he praised the new anti-dumping proposals which, he stated, should do much to help Canadian industries combat "the cut-throat competition they have faced for many years from below-cost imports."

NO TAX CUTS

However, he said:

"The total failure to reduce the crushing weight of corporation income taxes, especially when industrial earnings are sliding, should disturb every thinking Canadian."

"The best tonic for business, the individual taxpayer and the national economy would have been some real incentive in the form of a significant tax cut which would prove far less inflationary than the delayed-action effects of rising government expenditures."

Mr. McRae also expressed disappointment that no substantial cuts were made in excise taxes. Such cuts, he added, would have meant lower prices and these, in turn, would have stimulated both consumer demand and production.

Representatives of the automobile industry expressed disappointment that there was no change in the 7½ per cent excise tax on passenger cars.

The Primary Textiles Institute welcomed an increase in the tariffs on imports of wool cloth from the United Kingdom and the government's decision to amend the Customs Act to deal more strictly with "dumping."

The revisions would mean an increase of only a few cents a yard on British wool cloth, the institute said.

S. G. Farrar, secretary of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, described the announced increased assistance for gold mines as "wonderful."

He said it would be an important benefit in certain mining communities where mining has recently been cut back.

Under present law, exemption is given only to estates of $50,000 or less.

Also added as deductible medical expenses, in Finance Minister Fleming's budget Tuesday night, are costs of artificial eyes, laboratory or other diagnostic services, and ambulance trips to and from hospital.

The change will apply only to such expenditures made starting today.

There has been no change in the present stipulation that allows deduction only of medical expenses exceeding three per cent of net income—the income before other deductions.

Canadians will still have the option of claiming the flat $100 deduction for medical costs and charitable gifts combined.

In the past, deductible medical costs have been restricted mainly to doctors' and dentists' bills and hospital charges. A handful of special medicines also have been in the deductible class. The budget extends this to all drugs and medicines purchased under a doctor's written prescription.

To take advantage of the new provision, taxpayers will have to submit receipts.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has decided to raise a record $3,400,000,000 in bond sales this year, a move that could lead to higher interest rates—and perhaps inflation.

Finance Minister Fleming, after announcing the government's financial needs in his budget Tuesday night, told reporters he hopes the huge financing operation will not lead to higher rates. But he said no one could be sure how the bond market would react in the next few months.

"This is a major financial operation and will require the closest co-operation between the Department of Finance, the Bank of Canada, the chartered banks and all the investment institutions and dealers."

BOOSTS MONEY SUPPLY

The threat of inflation is involved in the possibility that the commercial money market may not be able to absorb all of the government's bonds and that the Bank of Canada—the federal sales agency—may step in to absorb the residue.

Every time the central bank adds to its portfolio of government bonds it in effect adds to the country's money supply.

The central bank's outlays find their way back to the chartered banks and since the chartered banks need to hold only 8 per cent of their deposits in cash, they can lend $92 out of every $100 received in new deposits.

All this could have the effect of still further expansion in the country's money supply, giving Canadians greater access to credit and a general extension of buying goods on time.

CONCERNED OVER COSTS

"I confess my concern over costs of production and prices in Canada," Mr. Fleming said at one point in his two-hour budget speech. "...We are in danger of becoming a high-cost economy. Such a prospect is particularly serious in the case of a country like Canada, which must sell so much of its production in markets abroad."

Higher education in Canada," Mr. Fleming said.

Mr. Fleming said that while many corporations are accepting seriously their responsibilities along this line, "a great many—indeed, far too many—corporations do not come close" to taking advantage of the existing five-per-cent tax deduction for such contributions.

TURKS BLAMED

Cyprus Theatre Set Afire

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A Greek movie house was set on fire today. A government spokesman blamed Turkish Cypriots opposing union of the island colony with Greece. The blaze was the fourth fire attack on Greek holdings in Nicosia in the last 24 hours. So far, however, there was no resumption of last week's rioting in which 15 Greeks and 2 Turks were killed. Britain Tuesday postponed announcement of her new plan for the future of Cyprus until Thursday at the request of the NATO council. The British plan, it was understood, would keep Cyprus under British sovereignty for seven more years but with the islanders getting more self-government. The Greek and Turkish governments also would be given closer official links with their communities on the island in hopes they would induce them to refrain from violence. The Turkish parliament rejected the plan in advance. Sources in Athens said the Greek government also was not satisfied with it. New York City, originally purchased from the Indians for $24, has an assessed realty value today of more than 22 billion dollars.

UN GROUP WILL PROBE HUNGARY EXECUTIONS

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (Reuters) — The United Nations special committee on Hungary said today it would "collect information" on the trial and execution of former Hungarian premier Imre Nagy. Committee Chairman Alsing Andersen said his group, which reported to the UN last year on the 1956 Hungarian revolt, might issue an additional report on the executions of Nagy, former defence minister Pal Maleter and two Hungarian journalists. "As the committee's authority is limited, it is doubtful what we can do," Andersen said. "But we will naturally collect information about circumstances of the trial and sentences."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today the execution of former Hungarian premier Imre Nagy has given a great setback to hopes for a summit conference. Eisenhower told a press conference he cannot think of anything that has shocked the civilized world as much as the execution of Nagy and his associates in the Hungarian revolt. The president said these men were not guilty of evil-doing but were fighting for their country. He said good faith had been violated in their execution. This act, the president said, can be regarded as clear evidence of the intent of the Soviet Union to pursue a policy of terrorism and intimidation aimed at enforcing complete servitude. Nagy's execution, the president went on, has alerted the free world to the lack of confidence it is compelled to feel in the Communist imperialists.

Agricultural College Suggested At Tranquille Sanitarium Site

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan Tuesday asked Premier W. A. C. Bennett to convert the abandoned sanitarium at Tranquille to a B.C. agricultural college, a junior college for arts and a chronic care hospital. He said in a letter to the premier, the existing facilities are large enough to include all three uses. Mr. Strachan said the operation of the Tranquille plant as a sanitarium cost the province $749,000 annually. "I am suggesting to you that this amount of money applied annually to the present Tranquille facilities would go a long way to fulfilling the multi-use purpose..." The location of an agricultural college, similar to Victoria College, in the interior, would relieve UBC crowding and make it easier for youths living in central B.C. to attend. Buildings which are removed from the central plant would be ideal for use as a chronic care hospital serving the general Cariboo - Kamloops - Okanagan area, he added.

'Major Advance' In Cancer Study

HONEY HARBOUR, Ont. (CP)—A "major advance" in cancer research was reported today when a United States woman scientist told how she has used a single virus to cause many types of cancer in experimental animals.

Dr. Sarah E. Stewart of the National Cancer Institute at Bethesda, Md., told research workers here she has induced as many as 29 different types of cancer in mice using a virus extracted from a single type of tumor-leukemia or blood cancer.

Her paper, delivered at the Canadian Cancer Research Conference gave support to the long-held theory that cancer is transmitted by a virus.

While some of her colleagues had reservations about the importance of her work, Dr. Arthur W. Ham, head of biological research at the Ontario Cancer Institute in Toronto, described it as "the most stimulating thing that has happened in cancer research in years."

Dr. E. A. Mirand, of the New York State-supported Roswell Park Memorial Institute at Buffalo, said the cancer-treatment and research centre has already checked and verified Dr. Stewart's work.

Dr. Stewart said in an interview she is unable to say how soon her findings can be applied to human cancer. It would first have to be shown that a virus causes certain types of human cancer and this has not been established.

Dr. Stewart's method involved cell-free extracts from leukemic mice. After growing virus outside the body of the mice—in tissue cultures—she was able to induce many varieties of tumor by inoculating other mice. She also found she could break through the species barrier by causing cancer with the mice extract in hamsters, rats and rabbits. Normally animals of one species will reject cancer cells from another species.

She found extracts of blood-cancer cells from one group of mice were able to cause cancer of the breast; the salivary and thymus glands in other strains of mice.

Toronto Votes Down Monorail

TORONTO (CP)—Metropolis' $189,600,000 east-west subway. Gardiner read extracts from a secret report.

Toronto council Tuesday night voted 15 to 8 against the use of the monorail in the Metro area, covering the city and 12 suburbs.

Suburban council members had moved to have a Texas company make the monorail study but the motion was defeated after chairman Fredrick

DR. LOTTA HIRSCHMANOVA, left, executive director of Unitarian Service Committee, examines X-ray equipment in Seoul hospital. With her are local officials of hospital. Equipment was donated by United States.

PARKING LAW CHANGE DUE

Motorists will be given a half-hour parking break if city works committee has its way.

Committee recommended to council Tuesday that curb signs prohibiting parking from 4 to 6 p.m. be changed to 4 to 5:30 p.m.

But the change will not take effect for about six weeks, if council accepts the measure and orders a new bylaw drawn up.

'CANADA HOUSE'

T-Bricks at Work In Seoul Hospital

The money donated by generous Victorians to the "T-Bricks for Korea" fund, sponsored by the Times last December, is hard at work in the Korean capital of Seoul.

Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, that administered the money, said it was used to help build what is known now as "Canada House"—an out-patients' clinic at the Han No children's TB hospital in Seoul.

The United States contributed the most up-to-date X-ray equipment in the city for Canada House.

Tory Victory Played Down By Bennett

Federal election successes by the Conservative party have not been reflected at the provincial level, Premier Bennett said today.

Commenting on the Manitoba provincial election Monday, the premier said he was surprised the Conservative showing was not better.

"They already had 10 seats to start with and only got 26."

He said the gain was due to dissatisfaction with the previous government rather than to Conservative federal successes.

The defeat of Social Credit candidates in Manitoba brought no comment from the premier.

"How I wished (at the dedication ceremony three months ago) that every Victoria Daily Times reader who had contributed to the 1957 campaign could have been there also," Dr. Hirschmanova wrote in a letter to the Times. "Seldom have I been prouder of my adopted country than at that moment."

"Over and over again I was asked to convey blessings and thanks to all those who donated the $12,000 to pay for local building materials and labor costs," she added. "The money could not have been used for a more urgent or far reaching pilot project."

Schools and colleges in the United States and Canada reduced their losses from major fires in 1957 by more than $1,500,000, as compared with the previous year.

Gas Blast Wrecks Home

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A leaking gas main has been blamed for an explosion late Tuesday that destroyed one east-end home, severely damaged two others and injured seven persons, none seriously.

Officials of the City Gas Company, whose workers are still seeking exact location of the leak, said the blast roared through the house while two workers were installing a gas main in the basement.

Both managed to escape after the blast lifted the home and it collapsed onto them.

Hospital Insurance Debate on Tap Today

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA — A measure to ensure a July 1 start in some provinces on the federal-provincial hospital insurance plan, expected ultimately to cover nearly all Canadian provinces, moves into a second legislative stage today.

The House begins debate on second reading approval in principle of a bill speeding up the plan which Health Minister Monteith has described as designed to embrace 10 different provincial schemes within the framework of one national act. The measure would permit a July 1 start of federal cost-sharing payments to provincial hospital care plans then in operation. In his budget presented Tuesday night Finance Minister Fleming estimated a federal outlay of "close to $70,000,000" for hospital insurance in the fiscal year ending next March 31. It has been estimated the full cost, if all provinces enter the scheme, will be about $200,000,000 a year. Under the original program designed by the former Liberal government, federal contributions would have been delayed until at least six provinces with a majority of the country's population had insurance plans in effect. For practical purposes that would have meant starting next Jan. 1 when Ontario's plan commences.

Mental Cases Not Covered

Several speakers noted that the present legislation does not make provision for federal sharing of costs of patients in mental and tubercular hospitals.

Mr. Monteith, in a progress report on negotiations with provincial governments, said agreements have been signed with Ontario and Newfoundliand. Newfoundland would start drawing payments July 1 and Ontario next Jan. 1.

In addition to Newfoundland, federal sharing of plans in the four western provinces was expected to start July 1. This included Alberta, although Mr. Monteith conceded there has been "some questions" whether Alberta legislation as it now stands comes within the act.

New Brunswick and Nova Scotia planned to have hospital insurance programs in effect by next Jan. 1. Prince Edward Island had announced intention of participating and would likely start "sometime in 1959."

Mr. Monteith said Quebec has not indicated its "intention in respect to the act."

Trade Minister Churchill said Tuesday he expects a report sometime next month on the distribution of boxcars in Western Canada.

The boxcar situation is being investigated for the govern-

Quebec Official Plays 'Two Roles'

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Devoir says Edouard Asselin, government leader in the legislative council, was chairman of the board of Quebec Natural Gas Corporation and its legal adviser when the company bought Quebec Hydro's household gas distributing system in 1957.

"Mr. Asselin... played dual roles," says the newspaper in the fifth of a series of articles on what it has called a $20,000,000 stock market coup over the transaction between the publicly-owned Hydro and the gas company, incorporated in 1955. Le Devoir also lists Mr. Asselin as a director of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., principal adviser to the Quebec government on legislation and as a partner in the Montreal law firm of Asselin and Saylor.

Le Devoir says Mr. Asselin became a director of the Quebec gas company June 15, 1955, when it was incorporated, and the law firm of Asselin and Saylor was hired by the company after negotiations with Quebec Hydro started.

"Mr. Asselin thus was, in the camp of the corporation, a top-ranking figure — chairman of the board of directors and legal adviser," says the newspaper. The same Mr. Asselin was also a top-ranking figure in the other — that of the provincial government preparing to sell the gas distributing system of Quebec Hydro to the gas corporation.

Repeating to Hon. Lionel Chevrier (Laurier), Mr. Churchill said Mr. Bracken, is expected to complete public hearings in Saskatchewan and Alberta this month.

English Named Deputy Education Minister

The appointment of Dr. J. F. K. English as deputy minister of education for B.C. was announced Tuesday by Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

He will succeed Dr. H. L. Campbell who has accepted a schools superintendent position with the national defence department. His new post will take him to Metz, France, later this week. Dr. Campbell's resignation officially is dated August 1.

Dr. English, 58, is a former municipal inspector of schools in Greater Victoria. Since 1953 he has served as assistant deputy minister. He is connected with many community groups including Canadian Club, drama and music festivals, adult education groups, Boy Scouts, the Anglican Church. He is a past-chairman of the Victoria Symphony Society.

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UP) — Oak Ridge officials began an intensive investigation today into an accident which left workers suffering from radiation exposure.

London Bus Strike Goes On

LONDON (Reuters) — London's 50,000 bus workers have decided to continue their 43-day strike. After four days of voting at 112 garages, the final count was 60 in favor of continuing the strike, 52 against. The strike for higher wages began May 4, taking 8,400 buses off the roads and forcing an average of 8,000,000 passengers a day to find other transportation.

Bees Set Up Shop In Gas Meter Lid

BRYAN, Tex. (AP) — Gene Hart is going to have to wait a bit for the gas bill to his furniture store. Charles Munday, meter reader, discovered a swarm of bees had built a honeycomb between the meter lid and its glass face.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little PASTERIN, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". PARAPLEGICS PLAY

Try Basketball While Sitting!

By GRAHAM COX

Ever try playing basketball sitting down?

It's quite an experience, and one that the average man wouldn't care to attempt too often.

But to a group of five young Victorians, it is the realization of a dream and a hope for the future.

The five are members of Morrison's Rockets—Victoria's first paraplegic basketball team. All are paralysed from the waist down and confined to wheelchairs, but healthy in all other ways.

The idea of wheel-chair basketball is not a new one by any means. In fact, two of the players have played the game before.

Roy Crawford played for Dueck's Power Glides in Vancouver for a year with the team that later made an exhibition tour through the B.C. interior for the Kinsmen Club.

There is a second team in Vancouver and others in various centres across the Dominion. In fact, there's enough to stage an annual Canadian championship tournament in Montreal.

Don Hillis, on the other hand, played three years ago with the Portland Rehabilitation Centre team, when they downed the world-famous Harlem Globetrotters by an 18-2 count in a 20-minute exhibition.

Fast and demanding, the game can become rough at times with spills and thrills when players move their light aluminum machines at top speed.

Lay Your Bets on Paraplegics

Paraplegics, in exhibition games against players of normal ability but also in wheelchairs, are more than likely to win nearly every game they enter.

The dexterity of their action is short of astounding, and the muscle development gives them a definite advantage when lofting the ball from the corners of the court.

Primary thought to organizing a Victoria team was provided by Gordon Korber, who, with the aid of Fred Blakeney, publicity director of Goodwill Enterprises, started the basketball rolling.

Over 50 paraplegic teams are active in the United States, and the Rockets are aiming at challenging out-town sides to games once they feel they are proficient enough.

Their coach is Lou McCorkall, local Island referee and for many years one of the city's outstanding players and coaches.

All enthusiasm, McCorkall is looking forward to September and the team's first exhibition game.

He also expects the team will be ready then to challenge local senior "B" and "C" teams to exhibitions.

More players is the team's immediate need. Paraplegics on the Island wishing to work out and play with the Rockets are invited to contact Korber by phoning 4-6960.

Operation Successful, So Now There's Hope

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—One of the surgeons who successfully removed bone chips from the injured right foreleg of Tim Tam said today it will be "late in the winter" before any decision can be made on whether the champion colt can race again.

Life Suspension

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto and District Soccer Association Monday night suspended Nicola Cacuciolo for life in an effort to cut unruly conduct. The discipline committee found him guilty of attacking referee Hugh Morrow in a June 9 match.

Tripucka to Try

REGINA (CP)—Frank Tripucka, passing quarterback who has been with Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference for five seasons, has signed a tryout contract for 1958.

Austrian Opponent

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Ukrainians of the National Soccer League have been selected to play Admira Wien, a touring Austrian team, here July 21.

Doctors Jacques Jenny and Charles Raker headed a team of four surgeons who performed the operation Tuesday at the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine.

Dr. Jenny said no complications are expected, but "some 14 fragments were removed and there was extensive damage to the attached ligaments." It will be six or eight months, he said, before the winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness can be properly evaluated as to racing form.

In other cases of a less serious nature, Dr. Jenny said, horses have returned to the track as early as four months after surgery.

Jimmy Jones, Calumet Farm trainer, said Tuesday he was much encouraged by the surgeons. Before the operation he had said Tim Tam would never race again. Now he says there is still a chance the three-year-old son of Tom Fool and Two Lea might return to the track.

Tim Tam was injured while running in the Belmont Stakes and lost his chance at racing's triple crown when he was passed in the stretch by the Irish-bred Cavan.

SECOND SEATTLE SQUAD SCHEDULES EXHIBITIONS

Senior "A" Men's Softball League teams will get a second major test Saturday and Sunday when they play their second exhibition series of the year. Pope Ford, second in the Seattle's major league behind the Federal Old Line team that appeared here last week, follow the Federals into Central Park.

Following Federal's three-game sweep against Gorge Hotel and a packed Arrow Furniture team, the Old Liners returned home to suffer a 2-0 defeat Monday at the hands of the second-place entry. The Fords meet Gorge Hotel at 2:30 and Half Way House at 6:45 p.m. on Saturday, and Sunday they will play Arrow Furniture at 1:30 p.m.

Heel-Toe Brigade Whips Into Shape

The slap of rubber-soled running shoes on pavement will become an increasingly familiar sound on highways around Victoria during the next month.

You can blame it all on the 23 miles of pavement-pounding facing runners entered in the annual All-Sooke Day marathon July 18.

The only run of marathon proportions held annually in the province, the Sooke Day chase is a man-sized test of muscle and determination.

Last season's champion, 22-year-old Jim Moore of UBC, will be back to defend his crown and attempt to lower the record of two hours 41:42 minutes which he set in quest of the Butler Trophy.

ENTRIES COMING IN

The top talent is already rising to challenge Moore's claim. A pair of veteran Victoria runners, Gordon Hartley, and Cliff Salmon, will enter the race, as will veteran Edo Vanni of Vancouver and Bill Gilliam of Vancouver's Olympic Club.

Youthful threat Jim Pickup has signified his intention of entering the chase, which starts at 5:30 p.m. July 18 in front of the Victoria City Hall, and the race committee also expects a number of service runners to join the heel-toe brigade.

Road-walking champion George Witham, formerly of England, now living in Sooke, will also join the race to Sooke Falls and the celebrations there.

The trophy donors have assured each finisher a merchandise prize just for covering the distance, with the major awards going to first and second-place finishers.

Entries for the race can be forwarded to Eric Butler, RR No. 2, Victoria.

VIC LAWN

Club Tourney Is Not Like Fraternity

University of British Columbia tennis team members fared badly Tuesday night in the fourth round of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club tournament.

Both Peter Bousfield and Isabel Ogle both were defeated in their singles matches. Bousfield lost to veteran Ted Smythe 6-4, 6-1, and Miss Ogle to Joan Parby 6-1, 6-0.

Both winners advanced into the semifinals of their divisions. Giant-killer Will Browne-Cave fell victim to Ed Hedley 8-6, 6-1, and Port Alberni champ Bob Peskett advanced with a 6-0, 6-0 win over Don Duncan.

Two top club juniors, Wendy Gox and Joan Woolson, captured their ladies' doubles match from Mrs. Henshaw and Mrs. Norman 6-4, 6-4, while the third-seeded men's team of Jack Butt and Warren Cameron defeated Bousfield and Hedley 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.

A second three-set match in the men's doubles was played when fourth-ranked Gordon Hartley and R. Miller clipped 6-2, Bishop and T. Juelsberg 6-3, 2-6, 6-2.

Tonight's draw:

6 p.m.—R. Mitchell vs. Aldergood, R. Peden vs. E. Hedley, W. Cameron vs. R. Miller, J. Leach vs. D. Higgs, J. Wells vs. J. Gill, S. Goss vs. C. Crump, A. Pitkethly vs. M. Chapman.
7 p.m.—Miller and Hartley vs. Parker and Dunbar, E. McCormick and D. McCormick vs. Crump and Leach, Salmon and Bousfield vs. Elmsley and Brand, Parby and Parby vs. Gardner and Wilkins, Mitchell and Peskett vs. Fraser and McLean.
8 p.m.—A. Ross vs. winner of Pitkethly vs. Chapman, D. McCormick, Jr. vs. winner of Crump vs. Soss, D. McCormick, Sr. vs. winner of Leach vs. Higgs, 6-2, Tremblay vs. J. Markham, J. Leach vs. Mrs. Henshaw.

Ron Puts Teeth Into Tigers' Bite

Saanich Tigers stopped Victoria City, 15-9, in a pee wee division Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association game at Stevenson Park Tuesday.

Ron Zilkke scored four goals to lead the winners, while Don McNeil added three. John Stewart paced the losing cause, also scoring three.

Saanich—Don McNeil 3, Ron Zilkke 4, Tom Churchill 2, Jim Alexander 2, Frank Alexander, D. Holmes, Verne Black 2.
Victoria City—John Stewart 3, Ted Phillips 2, Jim Davidson, Doug Green, Brian Smith, Bob Odell Total 9.

Clutch Single Saves Padres' Torrid Streak

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
San Diego's Padres, hottest club in the Pacific Coast League, ran their winning streak to 10 straight Tuesday night and closed in on the pace-setting Vancouver Mounties, whom they now trail by only three and one-half games.

The Padres preserved their string with a two-out, two run, 10th inning single by pinch-hitter Eddie Kazak, which gave them a 4-3 victory over the Spokane Indians.

Vancouver lost ground in dropping a 6-5 decision to Portland in the Beavers' park. Runner-up Phoenix, now only half a game ahead of San Diego, suffered a 6-3 setback at the hands of Sacramento, which snapped a nine-game losing habit. And Seattle fell back into the cellar on its 10-2 loss to the Bees at Salt Lake City.

TRAIL UP IN ARMS

Trail B.C. (CP)—The Trail Track and Field Club was talking darkly Tuesday of joining the Alberta track association after learning too late that the British Columbia trials for the British Empire Games have already been held.

The 18-member provincial team for the trials in Saskatoon this weekend was picked entirely from Coast athletes following trials Saturday in Kazak's blow gave pitcher Hal Woodeshick his fifth consecutive win and sixth of the season. San Diego's 10-game streak is the season's high for the PCL.

At Portland, little Vic Lombardi weathered a four-run Vancouver outburst in the first three innings and limited the league leaders to a single tally the rest of the way while the Beavers came from behind to cop the series opener.

Portland tied it up in the fourth on a solo homer by George Freese and a two-run round-tripper by Jack Littrel that sailed more than 400 feet into the centre field stands. It was the first clout of the campaign into the centre section of Multnomah Stadium. Joe Durham led the Vancouver attack with a three-run homer in the third and a triple.

OVER TRACK TRIALS

tended an Olympic training program in Toronto last summer, with the Alberta association picking up the tab.
"The B.C. Track and Field Association is doing a terrific job, but they are doing it at the Coast only. The outside centres are being shunned."
He said the B.C. association needs an "overhauling in its administration."
Trail and Kimberley will have athletes competing at Saskatoon, but they will be travelling at the expense of the individual associations.

PEE WEE BRADSHAW

'BELLIES' HERE TONIGHT

Irish in Stew Over Bradshaw

Victoria Shamrocks will likely be without the services of hustling Pee Wee Bradshaw when they tackle New Westminster Salmonbellies in an Inter-City Lacrosse game at Memorial Arena tonight.

Bradshaw, involved in a financial disagreement with club officials, said today that he does not intend to play until the dispute is settled.

His spot on the line with Archie Browning and Jim McNulty will be filled by Bert Bertoia. Ron Jay, Bob McKee and Ed Kowalyk will play on another line while the third offensive unit will be composed of Al Davies, Art Green and Ed Longpre.

But, with or without Bradshaw, Shamrocks get a chance to share the Inter-City Lacrosse League lead tonight at Memorial Arena when they tackle second-place New Westminster Salmonbellies.

Salmonbellies dropped into second place Tuesday as Vancouver Pileaters, paced by hat-tricks by Gordon Gimple and Fred Lusselman, took over the league lead with a 14-11 win over Nanaimo Timbermen.

Shamrocks can tie Pileaters for the top spot with a victory over Salmonbellies.

A crowd of about 750 watched the Pils, masters all the way, jump to 4-1 lead in the early minutes as they sought to end a three-game Nanaimo winning streak.

Elsewhere in the ICLL front, league commissioners have levied a $100 fine against Pils club for the actions and outspoken words of coach Jack McKinnon.

McKinnon took exception to the length of time taken by the commission in handing down a decision on suspension of Vancouver player Bill Barbour. The league executive emphasized that the fine was levied against the club, not against the man.

SOAP BOX DERBY
EDMONTON (CP)—Jimmy Skistad, 15, of Edmonton, defeated 23 other youngsters to win his second consecutive Alberta soap box derby title and will enter the Western Canada finals in Mission City, B.C., July 1.

Stan's Latest Slump Makes Him Sad Man

NEW YORK (AP)—Stan Musial's slump which threatens to become the worst of his career and the hitting streaks of Vic Power, Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito were the outstanding developments Monday in the major league batting races.

Musial has gone hitless in his last 17 times at bat and his average has dropped from .419 to .381.

The St. Louis star tumbled into second place in the National League competition behind San Francisco's Willie Mays who collected only four hits in 26 tries and whose mark fell 29 points to .387.

Meanwhile, while pace-setting Bob Nieman of Baltimore has been on the sidelines with an injury, the American League race has been highlighted by the hitting of Power, Kaline, Colavito and veteran Mickey Vernon, a two-time batting champ.

'PUBLIC SHOULD REALIZE'

Striking Seamen 'Suffering Too'

A statement by Seafarers' International Union business agent Norman Cunningham that "a strike could come at any time" against Black Ball does not mean a walkout is immediate, said ferry president Col. George Paulin today. "The union has been talking about striking for several weeks," he said, "but I don't think they want to isolate the island."

The union, which is seeking a 25 per cent pay raise for its 350 striking members employed by the CPR, has made similar demands against Black Ball. Mr. Cunningham told a Nanaimo service club Tuesday, "I don't know how long Black Ball ferries can continue as negotiations of our own and two other unions are continuing, but Black Ball seems to be taking the same line as the CPR."

He described the union's stand for a 25 per cent boost as "our rock-bottom position." The CPR has said it cannot agree to an increase greater than the 8 per cent accepted by 700 non-striking employees of the steamship service.

Mr. Cunningham added that while he realizes Vancouver Island businessmen are losing money and travellers are being inconvenienced, the public should realize that striking seamen are suffering too and that their pay of "$40 to $46 weekly" is insufficient to support a family.

He said the CPR's inability to meet the SIU demands are due to "inefficiency, incompetence and mismanagement where ocean liner service is provided on a ferry run."

Meanwhile, results of strike votes taken against companies operating oil tankers in B.C. are expected Friday.

The SIU has taken strike votes against Shell, British American and Standard oil companies, and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild is planning a vote of Standard Oil union members. Additional votes have been registered by the marine engineers against Shell and B.A.

SALLY ANN FAMILY DUE FROM CHINA

A Salvation Army family will arrive in Victoria next week after five years' field work in China.

Capt. Austin Millar, Mrs. Millar and Ronnie, seven, will stay in Victoria while awaiting re-posting. Captain Millar was director of a government school for delinquent boys at Hong Kong.

Arrival date is uncertain. The Millars will visit Mrs. Millar's aunt, Mrs. Frank Fear, 1260 Dunsterville. Captain Millar will demonstrate a Chinese flute for Salvationist musicians here. He says the flute, almost bugle-shaped, is the most popular instrument in Chinese Salvation Army bands.

Vic College Expansion Goes Ahead

The B.C. cabinet Tuesday approved a $250,000 expansion of facilities for Victoria College.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said in view of extreme crowding at the college, it is hoped the work can be completed before the start of the 1958 fall term in September.

The work includes construction of a third floor at the Ewing Building and relocating of three Gordon Head army buildings on the campus.

The new facilities will provide new space for laboratories, classrooms and the student cafeteria.

The Ewing Building addition will also permit expansion of the college library. Final decision on how the new space will be allocated is up to the college officials, Mr. Chant added.

New Directors Named to Chamber By Record Vote

Nine new directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, elected to serve a two-year term, were announced today by president Hugh Stephen.

They are:

W. G. Courtney, H. Barnes, George Gregory, MLA for Victoria, Justin V. Harbord, M. A. Kent, A. Leith, J. C. Thow, Dr. R. J. Wride and W. H. Yardley. Election was by secret ballot and the total number of votes this year reached a record of 566—more than 67 per cent of the Chamber's membership.

Starting next September, the new directors will serve with nine others who were elected for a two-year term in 1957.

During the next 10 days the directors will choose a new president and vice-president to take office next September.

FAN CLUB SAYS HE'S A HERO

Good of Charlie Brown is a hero after all. At least to his fan club of HMCS Venture, the navy junior officer training establishment at Esquimalt.

Armed with slide rules and obscure mathematical equations, they proved conclusively it was a physical impossibility for manager Charlie Brown to have caught the fly ball which he dropped last Friday and lost the game for his team.

And this is the way they did it: The ball was in flight for three days, just like a sputnik.

In order to do this it reached a velocity of 4,247,000 feet per second, and in fact

World's Longest TV Chain Unveiled by CBC in City

Victoria Observers See Trans-Canada Micro-Wave

By PHIL LEE—Times TV Editor

Canada's new—and the world's longest—micro-wave network works. And how!

As members of the press from coast-to-coast looked on in something close to awe the CBC trotted out its $50,000,000 "baby" and began putting it through its seven-league boot paces shortly after 9.45 a.m. today.

The historic event was witnessed locally from the studios of CHEK-TV by Mayor Percy Scurrell, reeves of municipalities, representatives of the Trans-Canada Telephone System, which built the network, and the press.

The program was carried on a closed-circuit. On July 1, Canada's 91st birthday, the public will see the micro-wave link demonstrating live television from sea-to-sea. It will be carried here by Channels 6 and 2 and will start at 1:30 and last until 3 p.m.

Even the most sophisticated and blasé person watching this morning would have to admit that the electronic miracle seemed more God-made than man-made.

SHARED SCREEN

In a breath-taking demonstration, that was marred by scarcely a flaw, Thomas W. Eadie, president of the Trans-Canada Telephone System, and J. Alphonse Quimet, general manager of the CBC, both sitting in CBC headquarters, Toronto, called for four CBC switchboard operators to share the same 21-inch screen.

They were from Vancouver, Winnipeg, Halifax and Toronto. Next, they used the 3,900-mile-long cable to call in stations from nine sections of Canada. Distance covered in less than three minutes: 20,000 miles.

For the first time in Canadian history citizens could see one another while they spoke. A Haligonian could visit a Vancouverite or a Victorian—or vice versa—in a matter of one-fiftieth of a second.

The demonstration, in addition to being skillfully engineered, was staged with perception and imagination. First the history of communication in Canada was outlined, from the first foot-slogging pioneers to canoes, to horse and buggy, the locomotive, radio, aircraft, telephone and radio. Well-remembered voices were heard again—King George VI's memorable Christmas broadcast of 1939, Chamberlain declaring war, Churchill, F.D.R.

Upon this foundation of communications the micro-wave network was explained. One hundred and thirty-nine towers stretch across the country. Each steel tower picks up the signal from the preceding tower and builds up its power roughly one million times before sending it on to the next tower.

Although trouble was encountered in many sections of the country during the three years it took to complete the network, no region was more troublesome than mountainous B.C., where men and materials had to be dropped in by helicopter such as in the case of Dog Mountain, near Hope, which rears some 6,500 feet above sea level.

The balance of the 90-minute program was devoted to Mr. Quimet and Mr. Eadie answering questions by representatives of the press, radio and TV located in the nine main sections of Canada.

BEING A DUCK OUT OF WATER these days is no fun, and downy baby is telling Mrs. S. W. Hawes, 4139 Interurban Road, all about it. He was found Tuesday in brush at Wilkinson and Interurban Roads by Diane Friend, 323 Conway. K. D. Phillips, 4136 Wilkinson, kept it in his store until Diane arranged for it to "board" with Mrs. Hawes. Yes, it has a little pool.—(Times photo.)

Partial Forest Closure Follows Hot, Dry Spell

A restricted industrial forest closure due to threat of forest fires, is ordered for midnight tonight by Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston. It applies to the Vancouver Forest District which includes Vancouver Island. It will continue until the current warm weather lasts.

The order means all industrial operations within half a mile of forests or woodland are restricted to operation between midnight and 1 p.m. daily.

The order suspends all campfires and burning permits. Provincial camping and picnic sites are still open, but the minister urged caution on all persons using these facilities.

It was the second industrial closure to be effected within the last month. During the last critical period, May 26 to 29, many up-Island sawmills and logging operations voluntarily closed completely.

Meanwhile, sweltering Victorians got some relief from the intense heat of the past few days as temperature hovered around the 67 mark.

Weatherman William Mackie reported a noon reading of 68, up three degrees from the 11 a.m. mark. He expected temperature to "not go much above the low 70s" this afternoon.

The 67 average is a substantial drop from Tuesday's 82 at 3 p.m. at Gonzales Hill weather station, the hottest June 17 in the 59-year-old record books and hottest day recorded this year.

Greater Victoria Water Board

Earlier, Saanich householders were warned that sprinkling regulations will be enforced if the heat spell is prolonged.

During the evening peak hour, water pressure dropped from an average of 80 pounds to only 20 pounds in some high areas.

Jumping as high as the mercury lately have been sales of ice cream and milk.

Druggists, too, have cause to rate Old Man Sol their best salesman. Mrs. Joyce Ludlow, assistant manager of a Yates St. pharmacy, said sun-lotion and cream, bathing caps and sunglasses were "selling very fast on Tuesday."

And how to keep cool? Said housewife and mother Toni Graeme, 1270 Yates St., "I've got a long glass of lemonade in one hand, a book about Alaska in the other—and I'm going to enjoy both under the largest tree in the garden."

Other Victorians had their own heat-beating wrinkles. One elderly Fort St. man lay in a tubful of cold water all morning, a Saanich part-time stenographer said she was going to spend the whole afternoon in an air-conditioned theatre.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—In Little League baseball play, base-runners are not allowed to "lead-off" (that is, leave his base before the pitcher throws the ball to the plate.) Why has the Little League adopted that rule?—L.B.

A.—Original founders of Little League baseball compiled their rules with the express purpose of seeing boys play and enjoy the game in a fair manner. The fundamentals are stressed first and other finer points of the game are taught boys as they grow older. If the lead-off was allowed, it would be unfair to the young pitchers who are trying to learn how to get the ball across the plate and should not have to worry at this stage about base stealing.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times' Editor, questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Haney Correctional Institution deputy warden John William Braithwaite today appointed warden to replace E. K. Nelson who is taking a position in California. The appointment was announced today by Attorney-General Robert Bonner. Warden Nelson, who was employed to superintend the setting up of the institution and select and train its staff, will assume an University of Southern California. Mr. Braithwaite, who takes over July 1, has been on the Haney staff since July last year.

B.C. royalty tax on furs taken in the province were reduced today by order-in-council. The tax on beaver and martin is reduced to 50 cents from $1 and on muskrat from 10 cents to 5 cents.

For passing two forged cheques, John Smart, 20, of 910 Market Street, was sentenced in city police court today to one month in jail. The amount of money involved totaled $181.

Arnold Webb, secretary-treasurer of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island, left for Nanaimo today to attend the 40th annual meeting. The Victoria delegation will include Conway Parrott, president of the Associated Chambers, and Hugh Stephen, president of Victoria Chamber.

Frank Minarowick, no fixed address, who removed his clothing on Yates Street on the evening of June 14, was sentenced in city police court today to one month in jail for indecent exposure.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said he was sending Minarowick to jail so that he could undergo a mental examination.

The accused, at his trial said he took off his clothes to "defend myself from the public as a whole."

Greater Victoria centennial committee has supplied prize ribbons and rosettes for the annual summer show of Victoria Horticultural Society to be held at the Crystal Garden June 27 and 28. Entries must be mailed to George A. Wiggan, secretary, at 1840 Fernside Road, RR 5, Victoria, by next Wednesday.

'Sput' Carrier Seen Clearly

Dozens of Victorians had a perfect view early this morning of the brilliant Sputnik III carrier rocket as it sailed across the eastern sky.

It was due at 4:11 a.m., but J. R. Williamson of Ayton Place, Glen Lake, said it turned up at 4:15.

"The sky was hazy, so the carrier was hard to see close to the horizon," he said. "But it was perfectly clear higher up."

Dr. R. M. Petrie, Dominion Astrophysical Observatory director, said three members of the observatory staff watched the passage from south to north. "It appeared to fade, then become bright again," he said. "That is because it is tumbling slowly, and the size of the reflecting area varies."

Rally 'round Charlie Brown

Good of Charlie Brown is a hero after all.

At least to his fan club of HMCS Venture, the navy junior officer training establishment at Esquimalt.

Armed with slide rules and obscure mathematical equations, they proved conclusively it was a physical impossibility for manager Charlie Brown to have caught the fly ball which he dropped last Friday and lost the game for his team.

And this is the way they did it: The ball was in flight for three days, just like a sputnik.

In order to do this it reached a velocity of 4,247,000 feet per second, and in fact must have traveled 27,993,000,000 feet (excluding friction) before it reached maximum height.

So, says Charlie's fans, it just wasn't possible for him to catch a ball travelling at 4,247,200 feet per second. And what's more, the ball wouldn't have come down anyway. It would have gone into an orbit after reaching 27,993,000,000 feet above the earth.

Therefore, Charlie, don't cry, says the fan club.

Meantime, they suggest the man who batted the ball get in touch with the Washington Senators (currently won 26, lost 31).

Italian Dressing Tasty Over Almost Any Dish!

By PENNY SAVER

This gourmet has suddenly taken a liking to Italian dressing... and can you blame her? I like it sprinkled sparingly over freshly tossed salads, hot spaghetti... and even included in my soup!

The tall 37-cent bottle contains the ultimate in dressing flavor and goodness. Why don't you try it today?

Next cocktail party you give, try this for a different and not too difficult treat! Heat up some of the new chip-puffs. They can be bought in any flavor, including onion, garlic, cheese and tomato. When heated the little chips puff up into life-size wafers!

Topped with a mixture of curry paste (put up in smart crockery jars), you'll be the hit of the season! The chip-puffs are selling at 45 cents a package and the curry 75 cents a jar.

If you're looking for a different idea in salad dressings, why not try cool and tantalizing sour cream dressing? Up to now, it's been the custom to mix sour cream with ordinary salad dressing for a tasty treat. Now, you can buy the sour cream dressing complete! It's 49 cents a tube carton.

Delicious! for your next luncheon party would be vegetable aspic jellies. To make them tiny and bite size, cut each jelly mould into odd little shapes and sizes! To do this you need metal cutters. Rather like cookie cutters, only much smaller, these aspic cutters are priced at 38 cents a dozen. They can also be used for tea sandwiches or hors d'oeuvres!

Did you like something I've said in my column today? Then call me at 2-3131.

Centennial United Setting Of Vows

At a double ring ceremony in Centennial United Church, Miss Carol Mary Edith Read, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Read, Front Street, was united in marriage with Ernest Edward Stidston, son of Mrs. W. Stidston and the late Mr. Stidston, John Street.

Rev. Douglas B. Carr officiated at the ceremony. Wearing a gown of white tulle over satin, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The fitted bodice was of white lace. A coronet of orange blossoms held her fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of red roses and freesias.

Miss Joan Read, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a pink gown with matching floral band. A yellow dress was worn by Miss Shirley Ball, bridesmaid, also with matching band. Both attendants carried bouquets of iris.

John Stidston, brother of the groom, was best man and ushering were Gordon Ball and Don Bull.

A three-tier wedding cake topped the bridal table at a reception in Legion Hall. It was flanked by white candles and vases of red roses. Erling Olsen proposed the toast.

Honeymoon was spent in Vancouver and the United States. The couple are now making their home at 545 Niagara Street.

On Etiquette

Greeting New Apartment Neighbors! Should apartment dwellers call upon newcomers, the same as if they occupied houses on the same street?

Louise Davis Answers: Residents in apartments are in a different category from house dwellers.

Unless the newcomers are friends, acquaintances or friends of friends, all live too close together to encourage "clubbiness" too soon, for such community fraternizing in a building can lead to unpleasantness, gossip and cliques. It is thoughtful and hospitable to welcome newcomers, but it would be wise to be fairly sure first that you would speak the same language. Many warm and lasting friendships have begun in apartments, but you can be sure they began cautiously. People shouldn't be as hasty to welcome new apartment neighbors as if they were living in houses where there is more opportunity of having their privacy respected. There are various ways of sizing up strangers, either by instinct, investigation or repeated how-do-you-do's in halls, elevators, laundries or garages. One too hasty with the welcome mat might be regretful afterwards. Your home is your castle, not a club room, so caution without snobbery is safe for peace of mind and well being.

WHY GROW OLD?

Tips for Teen-Agers On Care of Their Skin

All too often the glandular changes which accompany budding adolescence sabotage a young girl's first attempts to be pretty and feminine. It is usually somewhat painful to emerge from the Tomboy stage into the charming Junior Miss category.

Just about the time the feminine teen-ager stops playing softball with the neighborhood boys and starts regarding them as potential escorts for the next prom or dance, her skin may break out in a rash of pimples and her hair may become suddenly oily and lank.

Miss Mary Kirk, director of teen-age activities at Central New York YWCA has special grooming classes for her young proteges. She tells them that the complexion problems connected with the skin's over-secretion of oil at this age can be cut down considerably by washing the face frequently each day with warm water and plenty of soap. This should be followed by adequate rinsing.

Miss Kirk also impresses the girls with the importance of washing their faces thoroughly when they come in from outdoors because of the soot content of city air. Between washings she warns them to keep hands off. The habit of continually touching, or worse, picking and squeezing at facial blemishes, not only stirs them up but may also spread infection to other pores.

Mary Kirk recommends the steam method for gently removing blackheads (which often turn into pimples) from clogged pores. First suds the face and hands thoroughly as an anti-septic measure. Then pour steaming hot water into a basin or bowl and put the face down close to the water. Put a large towel over the head to keep in the steam. When blackheads have been loosened push them out gently with a piece of sterile gauze wrapped around the fingers. Rinse thoroughly. It is a good idea to apply alcohol afterwards.

Joint Meeting

Victoria Loyal Order of Moose and Women of the Moose were hosts to members from Duncan and Nanaimo in a fivepin mixed bowling tournament at Capital City Bowladrome for the Island Cup, which was won by Victoria. The match was followed by a social and supper at Moose Hall. It was announced by W. Bentham, governor of Lodge 390, that CHEK-TV, channel 6, will feature the story of the Child City of Mooseheart on Sunday at 6:15 p.m.

TODAY'S RECIPE

FROZEN FRUIT TREAT

One (3-ounce) package cream cheese, 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 1/2 cup whipping cream, 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice, few grains salt, 2 1/2 cups canned fruit cocktail, lettuce.

Cream the cheese and gradually blend in mayonnaise. Whip cream until stiff and fold into cheese mixture. Blend in lemon juice, salt and well-drained fruit cocktail. Turn into refrigerator tray and place in freezing compartment with control set at lowest temperature. Freeze until firm. Reset temperature control to normal. To serve, cut into slices and serve on lettuce-garnished plates.

Makes 6 servings.

DISCOVER BEAUTIFUL B.C. THIS CENTENNIAL YEAR

Take a trip to the future - head north to the Peace River and the Totem Route!

For a glimpse at our future - and a glance at our past - follow the Great North Road out of Prince George. Make Centennial Year your year to repeat the route of the Fur Brigadiers and goldseekers to this last, vast northland. See for yourself why places like Fort St. John, Dawson Creek, Pouce Coupe and Fort Nelson are making news - now and in the years to come. A Peace River vacation is still a great adventure. Even with highway improvements and modern accommodation, there's still the thrill of exploring a big, raw land where Nature serves scenic surprises with a lavish hand. Mountains, forests, plains, lakes, rivers, horizons - even the big game animals and full-of-fight fish are twice life size! Prince George is your jumping-off point for another great excursion, too - going west along the Totem Route through Vanderhoof, Burns Lake, Smithers, Hazelton, Terrace and a score of other towns and villages to Prince Rupert on the coast.

SUMMER FANTASY

Heat Wave Gives Reporter Dream of Beach, Cool Drinks

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

Editors have a habit of wanting stories. Usually they tell you what they want a story about, but once in a while, in heat waves for instance, they just make a general comment about needing what is generally known as "a bright little feature."

What this actually means is that the editor has run out of ideas and the reporter had jolly well better come up with a bright little feature all of his own making.

Under these circumstances, when the women's editor of this newspaper broached the subject this morning, I kindly offered to wander off to a breeze-cooled beach maybe, to commune with nature and dream up a little something.

I then suggested, tentatively, going home to my garden to do a helpful little piece on gardening. The do-it-yourself variety. Sort of the poor gardener's Mrs. Beestill.

It's hard to understand why this didn't go over so well. I would have thought there would be a large readership for this sort of thing in Victoria. All those good gardeners could gloat over the failures of a no-good gardener, and other non-green-thumb gardeners could find encouragement in the trials of a kindred soul.

2:30 p.m.—Investigated zinnia seedlings, found bugs had eaten more. Present score: bugs, 24; Duffus, 2.

2:45 p.m.—Went to investigate bed of double-stock seeds. Found weeds growing nicely. Discussed situation with neighbor, over cigarette and cool glass of lemonade.

3:45 p.m.—Discovered two small bean plants growing nicely amongst weeds and volunteer potatoes of vegetable plot planted weeks ago with spinach, peas, lettuce, beets. Celebrated triumph of bean plants over weeds with cup of tea with other neighbor.

4:45 p.m.—Turned sprinkler on brownest patch of brown lawn, and decided to call it a day.

You can see that this sort of thing isn't up to the very fine gardening columns in other parts of the paper.

But if editors would let their reporters go out and do actual research in the field, so to speak (especially during a heat wave), they might get more helpful authoritative articles.

Oh well, they've got the fans on in the office now, so it isn't quite so hot!

WEDDING PLANS ANNOUNCED

Huge Money Prizes for Sewing Contests Make Judges Prone to Nervous Breakdowns

NEW YORK (AP)—If a wave of nervous breakdowns develops among fashion designers and editors soon, blame the numerous home sewing and student design contests around the United States and Canada, which pay off in astronomical figures.

Nowadays the best ways for a woman to get rich quick are to enter a television quiz program or a baking or sewing contest—and as the prizes grow bigger, so does the nervousness of the judges.

Hannah Troy, New York dress designer who acted as a judge in the recent $125,000 "sew-off," in which several Canadian women collected prizes, was practically in a state of collapse as she congratulated the grand prize winner, Mrs. Paul Edward Bell of Lakewood, Ohio.

"GREAT RESPONSIBILITY"

"I didn't sleep a wink all night," confided Mrs. Troy afterward. "Just imagine, having to pick one contestant to win all that money! All three judges agreed that this was the best outfit from every standpoint—fashion, suitability to the model and craftsmanship. But still it's a great responsibility. I think it's harder on the judges than the contestants."

I could sympathize, for a few days before I had been one of three judges of a "young homemaker" sewing contest, which paid off with a $5,000 first prize.

Faced with racks of dresses, suits and coats which had won regional contests before being sent to New York, all three of us had an attack of stage fright. What if we were influenced by personal taste? What if we overlooked some important detail? The other two judges were Eloise Johnson, Chicago home economist and sewing expert, and Virginia Steele, an editor of Mademoiselle magazine.

Each outfit was graded on fashion, suitability of fabric, trimmings, finish, sewing technique and suitability to the wearer. So many points for this, so many for that. We worked harder than any college freshman on a final exam.

IDENTICAL RATINGS

And when all the scorecards were compared, we found the job was simpler than we had thought. All three came out with almost identical ratings.

Several costumes which scored high from a fashion standpoint had to be disqualified because of sewing blunders or bad fit. Some which had perfect sewing techniques didn't rate on the fashion score.

At the end of a long and grueling day we had picked our winners. Final rating for the four places awaited arrival of the contestants in New York, when we could see the clothes actually worn by their makers.

We were exhausted, but content. We felt that no detail had escaped our conscientious eyes.

Protest Raised In Bribe Case

By H. L. JONES

VANCOUVER (CP)—A defence lawyer took sharp objection Tuesday to the Crown's method of amassing evidence in the Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial and suggested it was designed to produce a prejudice against the accused.

Walter Owen, counsel for British Columbia Forest Products, jumped to his feet and interjected as Crown Prosecutor Victor Dryer called William A. Thorn to testify.

FROM TORONTO

Thorn, credit manager of a Toronto hotel (Royal York), was brought from Toronto to identify hotel registration cards dated in November, 1953, and bearing the names of former lands and forests minister R. E. Sommers and H. W. Gray, two of those accused in the Crown's 38-count indictment.

Owen protested first at the short notice given the defence of the calling of Thorn. Secondly he said the credit manager was the "wrong man," that he couldn't testify as to markings on the registration cards. Another hotel official was far better qualified to testify.

It was an "obvious attempt to call just sufficient evidence to prejudice without calling witnesses who can give the facts," Owen declared.

He said if Prosecutor Dryer

PRINCESS TO VISIT HOSPITAL

COMOX (CP) — Princess Margaret will call at St. Joseph's Hospital here during her B.C. tour next month to meet Robert Clifton, president of the Native Brotherhood of B.C., a patient here.

The call will be last stop on an afternoon tour of this area July 16.

The princess will arrive at Comox Airport from Nanaimo at 1:45 p.m., and will lunch with RCAF officers before making a 40-mile tour, which will include an Indian ceremonial welcome at Courtenay.

Also included on the Royal visitor's route will be a visit to a cairn marking arrival of first settlers and Glacier View Senior Citizens' Home.

First Sod Ceremony At Metchosin Church

METCHOSIN — Congregation of St. Mary's Church met Sunday at the site of the new rectory for a ceremony to mark the turning of the first sod by Frank Dobie, who had donated the land.

A short address was given by the rector, Rev. J. C. McDonald.

Forestry 'Going Back'

(From CP Dispatches)

CHILLIWACK — The forest industry in B.C. has gone backward in many cases during the past 20 years instead of making progress, the Sloan commission on forestry was told Tuesday by Victor Stusiak of Hope.

Mr. Stusiak, a shareholder in the Hope Lumber Company, cited as an example: "We are concentrating now on square and rectangle shapes in lumber and are not manufacturing the mouldings once so popular in the industry."

"We are not giving the customer what he wants and have made little if any improvement in the board itself. Compared to other industries we have not progressed at all... Except in the utilization of chips and bark."

The witness presented a brief urging the implementation of a designated marketing area in the Fraser Canyon sustained yield unit. He charged downstream mills bought Fraser Canyon timber at high stumpage rates only during boom times and forced Hope area mills to struggle along against peak prices for normal requirements during the recent recession.

North Saanich High Students Receive Awards

Awards day at North Saanich High featured the presentation of the F. N. Wright Memorial Trophy for athletic activities by Norman Wright to Lynn Christian on behalf of the school.

The Parent-Teachers' Association $10 awards were presented by past president D. Huntley to the following:

Excellence in art, Evelyn North and Michael Morris; home economics, Joan Burrows, LaVerne Thomas and Lynn Watson; commercial, Deanna Walker; industrial arts, Lothar Koppe and Jan Coward.

Track and field winners were: Joan Scantlebury, Anne Aylard, Linda McDonald, Carol Darks, Michael Nunn, Don McKay and Lynn Christian.

Valedictorian awards in the form of magazine subscriptions were made to Deanna Huntley, valedictorian, and Colin Ross, honor student, by D. W. Robb, their home-room teacher.

Speed and excellence certificates in typing were presented by commercial teacher, R. C. Blodgett, to: Dianne Tuttle, Douglas Alexander, Kenneth Johnson, and Gerald Plewes.

Students' council secretary, Evelyn North, made a presentation to J. Nunn on behalf of the students.

Council reports were read by Michael Adamson and Barry Mathews for the juniors, and by Willie Eng and Evelyn North for the seniors.

North Saanich High has won the F. N. Wright Trophy five times in the eight years it has been up for competition in school district No. 63.

Because of the CPR ferry strike, the three stores at Ahousat have long since been sold out, and residents there must make the trip to Tofino for supplies.

Merchants will make no effort to rebuild their stocks until after the strike, since present costs of moving goods are too high.

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Charlie, who operate Ahousat Trainers, said here that fishing has not been good this year, and that fishermen are badly in need of a "good break."

"Fishing now is the worst in many years, and last year was bad too," Mr. Charlie said. "I'm worried about how the Indians farther north are getting on."

Ahousat, on Flores Island, is the trading centre for a population of several hundred. It has a modern three-room school, a nurse and dispensary, Indian affairs department office, health and welfare branch, two churches and three stores.

Fishing is the chief source of income.

Tunnel Cave-In At Atom Centre

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A tunnel cave-in at the atomic test site north of here Tuesday killed one man and injured another. A crew was installing air-conditioning vents when the ceiling collapsed 500 feet from the tunnel entrance. Six other workers scrambled to safety.

HOT WEATHER CLOSES WOODS

NANAIMO (CP) — Mounting temperatures and falling moisture readings forced closure Tuesday on a temporary basis of two MacMillan and Bloedel logging camps in the Nanaimo area.

A company spokesman said Nanaimo River and Copper Canyon camps were closed in accordance with a prescribed formula.

No other camps in the district were affected Tuesday, but lumber company officials said readings were approaching the critical point and there was strong possibility of a general closure being ordered.

Lumber Firm Criticized on Tax Position

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—IWA spokesman John Squire Tuesday criticized a MacMillan and Bloedel Ltd. announcement that it would not pay $278,000 school taxes for which it had been billed.

The announcement was reported by Port Alberni Mayor Loran Jordan recently at a council meeting.

Squire said: "It is evident that this company is going to hide behind every legal technicality they can muster. Unless the company is brought to task... they will deny, and we will lose, at least $5,000,000 on general and school taxes between now and 1965."

The fixed assessment agreement between the city and the company expires in 1965.

Squire said he considers the situation a crisis. He said the council could not recall tax notices which had set a tax rate of 34 mills and could not hope to submit and have passed a money bill to offset the expected loss.

Ratepayers Discuss New Political Party

NANAIMO—Discussion of a new B.C. Ratepayers political party will be the main subject at a special meeting of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association, to be held at the Malaspina Hotel Monday at 8 p.m.

David Fisher of North Oyster Ratepayers' Association, chairman of the VIRA resolutions committee, will report on the move. One of the objects of the proposed party will be to abolish school and hospital taxes from land.

There also will be discussion of the current ferry strike and of means to end the dispute. Federal responsibilities to Vancouver Island will be discussed by Claude Harrison, former Victoria mayor, and Ald. W. C. Hamilton of Port Alberni.

Duty Increase On Woollens 'Unrealistic'

(From CP and UPI Dispatches)

TORONTO — Joseph Baleon, former United Kingdom trade commissioner in Toronto, said today the 10 to 20-per-cent increase in duty on British woollens and worsteds is "incomprehensible, unrealistic and wrong."

He said the tariff increase announced by Finance Minister Fleming in his budget speech Tuesday will have to be negotiated under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Mr. Baleon is doing public relations work for British woollens and worsteds.

Gerald Peers, Toronto chairman of the British Textile Agents' Association of Canada, said the increase not only discriminated against Britain but also worked against the policy of increasing trade with the U.K.

"The British woollen and worsted industry's participation in the Canadian market is down this year, while Italian and other foreign participation has increased over 100 per cent. There has also been no indication of what the government will do regarding the threat of Japanese exports," he said.

Meanwhile, in Montreal, the Primary Textiles Institute of Canada said Mr. Fleming's decision vindicates the views the industry has had for years.

"The Customs Act should be revised as quickly as possible to put a stop to dumping on the Canadian market which has been possible under the system of valuation in effect since 1948," a statement said.

"In suggesting minor increases in the duties on British wool cloths coming into Canada, the tariff board also pointed out that Canadian sales involve only a small portion of the total British wool cloth exports, and that U.K. producers can retain these sales."

FURTHER STEPS
Implementation of the board's recommendations will not have the effect on Canadian-U.K. trade that this country has been led to believe during the past few days as, for one thing, further steps to deal with imports of wool cloth are also proposed.

"And present revisions will mean only an increase of a few cents a yard on British wool cloth shipped here."

In Ottawa William Benndickson, Liberal financial critic, pinned the label "sick budget" on Mr. Fleming's first formal budget.

The minister, he said, "offered very little anti-inflationary medicine for a sick budget."

He said Mr. Fleming had introduced some harmony—a blue carnation and blue clothing.

"We certainly have a blue budget," Mr. Benndickson said.

"We have more than a blue budget. We have a sick budget."

GOBBLEDEGOOK

Mr. Benndickson said Mr. Fleming spoke a lot of "economic gobbledegook" to explain the country's affairs.

While in opposition last year, Mr. Fleming had said "we wish to see a balanced budget because we believe in a balanced budget."

It contained "little anti-recession medicine. It lacked quick economic stimulus."

"Not only does it lack push, but it will push a lot of business in the wrong direction," Mr. Benndickson said.

"We have a deficit not by design but a deficit by default, and we can say that the promises of yesterday have become the deficit of today."

"The government is sitting out this recession situation and is sitting it out on its hands."

"It's a wait-and-see, a slow-motion budget."

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce said the contents of the budget "came as no surprise," but urged the government to work out a long-range program of reducing tax rates which are too high for a developing country.

Here is some editorial comment:

Toronto Star — "It is downright insipid and impotent. The tariff changes may shore up employment a little in a few over the water leading to the high central span of the bridge. A temporary support was built to carry the fifth section half-way between the two concrete supports.

BUILT FORWARD
The steel work was being built forward from the temporary support to the permanent support.

Although no steel work had been done on the south side of the bridge. Much preparatory construction had been completed since work started two years ago and it was hoped that the bridge might be open to traffic later this year.

The bridge was designed to speed the flow of traffic between Vancouver and the fast-growing dormitory areas of the north shore.

Witnesses spoke of a long thundering roar which accompanied the collapse of the bridge sections. The sections apparently moved hesitantly as they broke their moorings and dipped into the water.

HEAT AND TIDE
The failure came as thermometers touched 81 degrees, highest temperatures here this year, and shortly before the fast-flowing tide reached a height of 17.8 feet, a June record.

But there was no apparent reason to connect the collapse with either of these factors.

Steelworker Bill Stroud said the front section would have been secured on the permanent third pier when his job was completed, likely later Tuesday. He was about to weld a connection when the mass of metal work collapsed.

People standing on the old bridge directed nearby boats to the survivors. Often the boats arrived to find a corpse.

HELICOPTER
As the search boats, aided by an RCAF search and rescue helicopter, covered the water again and again in search of the last victims, the curious gathered along nearby roads to watch their progress. Police had begged motorists to avoid the area.

The presence of death was nothing new to the treacherous Narrows. Four men had died in previous accidents on the new bridge and many swimmers and boatmen have been dragged to their death there by the fast tide.

INQUEST

The Vancouver coroner's office will hold an inquest at 10 a.m. Friday.

The office of coroner Glen McDonald said today the inquest will be for purposes of identification and presentation of medical evidence. Then it will be adjourned until investigation of the collapse is complete.

Relatives of the dead bridge workers will be allowed to make burial arrangements after the inquest. Until then the bodies will remain in the city morgue.

localities. But a high-tariff policy usually lashes back on the export industries."

Toronto Telegram—"Finance Minister Fleming has firmly grasped a policy of deficit financing as a means of easing the impact of the recent recession and setting in motion a new boom. It's a deficit for development."

Montreal Star — "Broadly speaking it means that, at least so far as the government's first budget is concerned, the wise fiscal policies of the past have been continued in essence though relieved in minor particulars."

chief justice to enquire into "any and all of the circumstances surrounding, leading to, or having any causal connection, with the aforesaid collapse."

The commission is specifically to determine, "whether technical and engineering advice to the toll authority, and any contractor or contractors, in any way involved, was sound, and whether such advice was followed, or to any extent disregarded by any person or persons, in employ of the authority, or by anyone acting on its behalf, or by any contractor or sub-contractor, engaged in this undertaking."

"... and to ascertain whether any person or persons, firm or corporation, in any way contributed to, or caused the said collapse."

The disaster shocked members of the B.C. cabinet who were meeting in regular session when the collapse occurred. Reporters gave the grim message to Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi as the meeting ended.

BY SEAPLANE

Mr. Gagliardi at first thought they were joking. Minutes later he was conferring with senior engineers. Then he was instructed by the premier to fly immediately to Vancouver to investigate.

He departed from the inner harbor by seaplane.

Prior to leaving he issued a statement expressing sorrow at the great loss of life. "The bridge can be rebuilt," he said. "But we can't replace the men's lives."

Mr. Gagliardi also stated he expected the tragedy would mean a six-months delay in completion of the $19,000,000 span. It was to have been finished in the summer or fall of next year.

The bridge was being constructed for the B.C. Toll Highways and Bridges Authority. It was designed by consultant engineers Swan, Wooster, Construction contract was held by Dominion Bridge, the same firm which last year completed the Point Ellice Bridge at Victoria.

Mr. Gagliardi said the collapse wouldn't cost the province "... a nickel more," although the cost to the project may be $4,000,000. The contractors are fully responsible for the bridge until it is turned over to the government. He presumed Dominion Bridge carried insurance against such a catastrophe.

LOSS OF TIME

"It's a serious loss of time which pains me no end. But as far as the government is concerned, the financial loss won't affect us," he added.

Premier Bennett called the collapse a "terrible tragedy."

He added, "Loss of life is distressing to us all."

Legal circles at the parliament buildings were uncertain whether survivors, next of kin of workers who were killed, or the Workmen's Compensation

Board, which faces claims, would launch suits against the contractors. Much will depend on the outcome of the Lett royal commission, they surmised.

Leader of the Opposition, Robert Strachan also issued a statement upon hearing of the disaster.

INVESTIGATION
He asked a full-scale investigation of the whole public works department. He questioned whether the accident could have resulted as a result of laxity or interference by Highways Minister Gagliardi.

"I think it is now obvious that the number of first-class engineers, which Mr. Gagliardi's policies drove out of government service, created a vacuum which he has been unable to fill."

"It must be obvious that a major change in policy is required to bring back to the department some of the technical, trained personnel who can in future prevent recurrence of this disaster."

"The minister of highways, whose department is responsible for this work, has been under question by the opposition for some years now."

"We have felt that as a layman he interfered much too much with the technical personnel, trained in highway and bridge construction, and out of this interference has come the classic expression that Mr. Gagliardi's ideas are a triumph of imagination over engineering."

"Is this bridge collapse a result of Mr. Gagliardi's imagination?"

ASKED QUESTIONS

Mr. Strachan recalled that during the last session of the B.C. legislature, "... I tried unsuccessfully for more than an hour to have the minister answer specific questions with regard to contracts let by his department."

"Only a full-scale investigation of this department can give the people of B.C. the necessary assurance that the present highways department is organized efficiently and is able to protect the interests of the people," he added.

Col. W. G. Swan, chief designer for the engineering firm that designed the $16,000,000 bridge, could give no reason for its collapse. Until the Royal commission turns up information, he said, "we won't know the answer."

Government Still in Doubt In Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — The final outcome of Monday's Manitoba general election remained doubtful today as Premier D. L. Campbell declined to indicate what his next step would be.

Mr. Campbell, whose Liberal-Progressive government was swept from power in voting won by the Progressive Conservatives, without a clear majority, told reporters Tuesday he was studying the situation.

He was fatally wounded on Mount Scopus last month probably was killed "by a shot originating from Jordanian-controlled territory."

The report indicated there was virtually no doubt the Jordanians were responsible.

The UN made public a report signed by Maj. Gen. Carl von Horn, Swedish chief of staff of the UN truce supervision organization in Palestine, who led an investigation into the Canadian's death on the disputed mountain near Jerusalem.

The report said the only doubt in the conclusion blaming the Jordanian side lay in the remote possibility that the fatal bullet had ricocheted.

Persons who like their gadgets portable can now buy a prefabricated nuclear reactor designed for training purposes at universities and engineering schools.

UP TO CAMPBELL

The Liberal-Progressives won only 19 seats in the 57-seat legislature, compared with the 34 they held at dissolution. The Conservatives won 26 seats and the CCF 11. The other seat was held by independent Stephen Juba, mayor of Winnipeg.

The Progressive Conservative Leader, Duff Roblin, was expected to become premier, but the first move was up to Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell could remain in office until his government was defeated in a House vote. None of the party leaders indicated any wish to form a coalition.

'AIR FILLED WITH SHOUTS AND CRIES'

VANCOUVER (CP) — "The air was filled with shouts and cries," said Bill Hallman, who was driving across Vancouver's old Second Narrows Bridge Tuesday when he saw two spans of the half-constructed new bridge plunge into the waters of Burrard Inlet.

"They didn't have a chance," he said of the victims. "It all happened within a moment. When they hit the water I could see some grasp for pieces of driftwood. It appeared about half of the men were trapped underwater by the bridge sections. Others were swept away by the current."

Arabs Blamed For Death Of Canadian

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

(CP) — The United Nations reported today that Lt. Col. George A. Flint, Canadian UN military observer in Palestine who was fatally wounded on Mount Scopus last month probably was killed "by a shot originating from Jordanian-controlled territory."

The report indicated there was virtually no doubt the Jordanians were responsible.

The UN made public a report signed by Maj. Gen. Carl von Horn, Swedish chief of staff of the UN truce supervision organization in Palestine, who led an investigation into the Canadian's death on the disputed mountain near Jerusalem.

The report said the only doubt in the conclusion blaming the Jordanian side lay in the remote possibility that the fatal bullet had ricocheted.

Past Bridge Disasters Take Heavy Death Toll

By The Canadian Press

Niagara gave at Niagara Falls collapsed under the pressure of tons of ice piled around abutments. The bridge threatened by the grinding blocks for two days. No was killed in the eventual lapse.

Two collapses of the bridge near the city of Quebec killed more than 73 workmen.

More than 60 workmen were killed Aug. 29, 1907, when a 1,200-foot section of the bridge plunged into the river. Nine years later, Sept. 11, 1916, as the great central span was almost in place, it slipped and 13 persons were killed as it plunged down.

The original Point Ellice Bridge in Victoria collapsed 62 years ago, plunging a heavily loaded streetcar into the water. A total of 55 persons died.

Seven years ago the 2,000-foot Duplessis Bridge, built for $3,000,000, collapsed at Trois Rivières, Que. Four men were killed when four spans fell into the ice-choked St. Maurice River.

Canada's most spectacular bridge accident occurred Jan. 28, 1938, when the 1,260-foot honeymoon bridge across the

Move Made on Plane Ban

Campaign to keep aircraft off Elk Lake was initiated informally Tuesday by Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee.

Chairman Charles Nelles was instructed to contact a former deputy minister of the department of transport to find out what steps can be taken to bar pontoon planes from the lake. He will make a report to both councils.

"I think both councils should bring pressure to bear in Ottawa to obtain a prohibition against aircraft using Elk Lake," said Saanich Coun. George Chatterton.

City solicitor's department is still waiting for a reply from D.O.T. outlining how much control the city has over the lake, committee was told.

Regulations Sought For Recreation Area

Saanich council will be asked to pass a by-law enforcing new regulations for Elk and Beaver lakes.

The regulations would prohibit picking flowers, lighting fires, littering and bringing in glass bottles to the park area. Horses and dogs would be barred from beaches and the park area would be closed to cars after 11 p.m.

Hunting and camping would be forbidden and launching of powerboats from park areas would not be allowed except with express permission of the water commissioner.

Lake Area Reverts To Hamsterley Name

North end of Elk Lake will be renamed from Happyland to Hamsterley Beach. Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee Tuesday voted to adopt the change recommended by parks superintendent W. H. Warren.

The step turns back the clock five years. The area previously had been known as Hamsterley, after the Hamsterley tearoom built there by well-known city businessman A. H. Pease, now deceased.

Mr. Warren said the Happyland name should be dropped because of its association with "honky-tonk" atmosphere.

"There have been many complaints about it and our relations with the concession there have made it anything but a happy land," commented Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood.

OFFICIALS VIEW WRECKAGE WHERE 18 DIED

Highways Minister Philip Gagliardi and Col. W. G. Swan, chief designer for Dominion Bridge Company, study collapsed sections of Second Narrows Bridge in Vancouver. Arrow points to base of temporary scaffold which apparently gave way, allowing steel span to fall. Second span then also dropped.

Frogmen Hunt Bodies In Twisted Girders

VANCOUVER (CP) — Skin divers worked in bright sunlight today to recover the last of 18 men killed or believed buried in the twisted wreckage of the collapsed Second Narrows Bridge.

Fourteen bodies were in the Vancouver morgue. Two others were recovered from the wreckage after two sections of the bridge collapsed into Burrard Inlet, but could not be recovered immediately.

Two other men were missing and possibly swept downstream by tidal rips.

The two outermost spans of the skeletal structure, jutting out from the North Vancouver shore, collapsed with a mighty groan soon after 3.30 p.m., plunging construction workers into the tidal stream.

Some victims were crushed to death by the massive girder work falling on top of them.

Others were pinned under the water by the debris and drowned before they could be reached. Officials believed others were swept away by the tide to drown downstream.

The men dropped more than 150 feet into the inlet, which varies in depth between 35 and 40 feet.

WORE LIFE JACKETS

Most of those taken from the water had life jackets on and some of the victims were harnessed to the girders with safety belts. Rescue workers had to labor with crowbars among the tangled wreckage to free some of the victims.

Shipping through the Narrows was unaffected by the accident. The bridge so far extends barely one-third of the way across the channel and does not cover the main shipping lane. The 200-foot-high centre span has not yet been constructed.

The metal framework rises from the shore on concrete pillars, the last completed being 140 feet high. The bridge is planned to cover a distance of two miles, including approaches.

CRANE TOPPLES

Fourth and fifth in the structure stretching two-thirds across the inlet from the North Vancouver shore toward the city, each cantilevered with one end in the water and the other leaning on high concrete piers. Mashed within the tangle of girders was the wreckage of a crane which toppled with the fourth span.

The spans that fell had been set in place on concrete pillars.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Our Father, who art in heaven, we thank Thee for this day. We are grateful for all material blessings, for we recognize that all these come from Thee. Forgive us when we sulk. Help us to forget self but never to forget Thee. Confront us with our responsibility to persons in need, whether their needs are material or spiritual. Help us to live this day as though it might be our last day here. We ask all this in the name of Christ. Amen.

Heavy police reinforcements were stationed along the Champs Elysee to head off any possible violence between leftwing and rightwing extremists.

Paper-Thin Tax Cuts In Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives' first full-scale budget has given Canadians almost-invisible tax cuts and the prospect of record government spending.

Tax reductions of $26,000,000 a year were thinly scattered in Finance Minister Fleming's budget Tuesday night as he predicted a $648,000,000 deficit, another peacetime high.

For the remainder of the current fiscal year that started April 1, the indicated tax reductions are just $8,000,000, a drop in the bucket against revenues of $4,652,000,000.

NO BASIC CHANGES

There were selective tax exemptions, no one benefiting much.

There were no changes in personal or corporation income tax rates, the big items of treasury intake.

Nor was there any change in the special excise taxes on such major articles as automobiles, radio and TV sets, tobacco products and liquor.

By and large, in the first Conservative budget in 23 years, the government stuck to previously defined policies for beating the recession, a mixture of tax and allied policies.

Mr. Fleming's presentation, delivered to the Commons in a two-hour speech, was promptly labelled by the Liberal party as a "sick" budget.

RAISE WOOL TARIFF

Tariff proposals included wide-ranging immediate changes aimed at protection of some Canadian industries, notably against imports of woollen cloths from Britain. This tariff went up from 50 cents a pound to 55 and 60.

Anti-dumping legislation will be forthcoming shortly, though there was some prospect that it could run into trouble from countries exporting into Canada. The proposal will be to toughen the law against goods "dumped" into this country by assessing special dumping duties on the basis of production cost plus "reasonable profit, instead of the present basis of selling price in the country of origin.

When he came to cutting taxes, Mr. Fleming, in his 20,500-word speech, gave away

See Also Page 20

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Crown disclosed today that it is bringing new witnesses from Toronto to testify in the Sommers bribery-conspiracy case involving former lands and forest minister Robert Sommers and others.

Prosecutor Victor Dryer made the disclosure today in commenting on criticism by defence counsel Walter Owen.

The defence lawyer Tuesday charged that the Crown was not calling the right witnesses and that the police seemed interested in contacting only those who would create a prejudice against the accused.

Prosecutor Dryer said that as a result of this he had the RCMP telephone Toronto Tuesday night and contact three more prospective witnesses including a clerk at the Royal York Hotel whom he did not identify.

The development came after William A. Thorne, credit manager of the Royal York was recalled to the stand to identify certain hotel registration cards.

CHARGED WITH EXTORTION

Maid Arrested--Kidnap Suspect

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto police today arrested Greta Goede, 45-year-old German immigrant, and charged her with attempted extortion in connection with a case here.

Inspector John Nimmo said she is the woman wanted in Montreal on a charge of kidnapping two-year-old Joel Reitman.

A warrant for the arrest of

Greta Goede, the maid who was taking care of the Reitman boy at the time of his kidnapping, and who formerly worked in Victoria, was issued in Montreal today.

The Greta Goede questioned by police here said she had never met the Reitmans and "somebody may be using my name."

After she was arrested here and charged in connection with the extortion case, Inspector Nimmo said: "She is the girl from Montreal."

He said she may be charged here in connection with the kidnapping and taken to Montreal later.

Inspector Nimmo said the extortion case here concerned the family of Arthur Cobham, in suburban York Township, for whom Mrs. Goede worked this spring.

He said a woman had "started sending letters of extortion demanding money." The first letter was received on the morning the woman started to work for the family.

Joel Reitman was left with an Ottawa taxi driver Monday night after three days' absence, during which time the kidnappers demanded a $10,000 ransom from his parents. The tot was back with his parents in Montreal today.

Mrs. Goede said earlier she had been staying with friends in Brampton since May 25 and had returned to her rented room here Monday night.

Police said they had questioned Mrs. Goede for several hours and compared handwriting on notes left at the Reitman home and the Cobham home.

The extortion notes to the

Cobhams were reported to have threatened that their home would be burned down and their son killed if $2,500 was not put in a certain hiding place.

Traps were laid by police but no one turned up for the packages placed in various spots.

Mrs. Goede, who told reporters she had come to Canada shortly after her husband's death in 1950 also worked for the family of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Belber of Toronto.

"She was a wonderful worker," Mr. Gelber said. "But one day she just left a note and quit."

"She kept the house immaculate," Mrs. Gelber said. "I was very happy with her work."

Mrs. Goede said that after she came to Canada she worked in Edmonton, Dawson Creek, B.C., Fort Nelson, B.C., and Vancouver, as well as Victoria, before coming to Toronto.

$4 Million Damage In Vancouver Bridge Disaster

On the heels of Tuesday afternoon's disastrous collapse of the partially-completed new Second Narrows Bridge at Vancouver, in which 18 men died, there were these developments today:

● A provincial government royal commission of investigation by Chief Justice Sherwood Lett got underway immediately.

● An unidentified foreman on the job was quoted as saying the disaster resulted when a temporary pier holding the outermost steel span gave way. As one span went into the water, it wrenched loose a concrete pier, causing a second span to fall.

● Highways Minister Philip Gagliardi estimated the damage to the bridge itself at $3-$4,000,000 but said this loss will be borne by Dominion Bridge Company, the contractors, and its insurers, and will not cost the public "a nickel."

● CCF Opposition leader Robert Strachan demanded an investigation of the entire highways department and its extended building program. This was echoed by at least one newspaper, the Vancouver Sun, which also asks for a recheck of all major construction projects.

The following story and others on this page and pages 3 and 30 tell the details of the disaster and its aftermaths.

Commissioner Begins Inquiry

Attorney-General Robert Bonner flew to Vancouver by seaplane from Inner Harbor this morning to confer with Chief Justice Lett on the royal commission investigation.

Chief Justice Lett was appointed by Premier Bennett Tuesday night.

His duties, as a one-man royal commission, will be to determine whether negligence was responsible for the tragedy.

Mr. Bonner carried with him official terms of reference which will govern the investigation.

Terms of reference give widespread powers to Chief Justice Lett.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Mr. Justice Lett can call in any experts to assist him.

The government has been offered "all the help they can give" by the Professional Engineers' Society of B.C., the premier added.

The wording of the terms of reference notes the collapse, "... by causes unknown" with "grievous loss of life."

The document authorizes the

APPLIES OWN TOURNIQUET

Calmly Lights Fag After Leg Cut Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 22-year-old steelworker, trapped in the girders of the fallen Second Narrows Bridge, put a tourniquet on his severed leg with his belt and then lit a cigaret while waiting for rescuers.

George Schmidt of Vancouver was working in one of the girders Tuesday when two sections of the bridge collapsed, killing 18 men.

Trapped only a few feet above the water of Burrard Inlet, he looked down and saw that one of his legs had been sheared off just above the knee.

He took off his belt and made a tourniquet with it around his thigh. He then smoked a cigaret and waited until two men came and lifted him out of the mangled steel into their rowboat.

Mild Cheers, Jeers, Yawns Greet Budget

By JOHN MIKA

A general yawn, broken by a smattering of cheers and one loud jeer, was Greater Victoria's response today to Finance Minister Donald Fleming's first budget.

Saanich municipality and flower growers were chief beneficiaries here under the fiscal changes, but British clothing retailers suffered a setback.

Bernard Shaw's manager, B. W. Storkey, said the government's decision to increase the tariff on British textiles "is definitely a step in the wrong direction".

The tariff was raised from 50 cents a pound to 55 cents on heavy cloth and 60 cents on light material.

"A lot of cloth we get from Britain could not be manufactured here economically any way, so it won't help the Canadian industry much," he said.

The increase will harm Canada's trade position "because British imports will suffer, but the Canadian industry will not be helped very much," said Mrs. R. G. H. Murray, manager of Island Weavers, Ltd., which imports all its cloth.

"But the increase shouldn't raise retail prices on British garments by more than 20 or 25 cents," she added.

BUDGET

mainly this on personal income tax:

1. Deductibility of medical expenses is extended to include costs of prescribed drugs, eyeglasses, artificial eyes, ambulance costs and laboratory or other diagnostic services, effective immediately. However, medical expenses will continue to be deductible only when they exceed 3 per cent of income.

2. A husband may claim tax deductions for amounts paid for support of a wife or other dependents under a court order, even in the absence of a divorce or written separation agreement.

EXTEND CLAIM PERIOD
Also on income tax, the period for claiming tax refunds will be four years instead of two and interest on tax overpayments is increased to three per cent from two.

For charitable gifts, corporations are granted tax deductibility up to a maximum 10 per cent of profits—instead of the present five—with a view to their making more money available to such institutions as universities. The provision is effective from last Jan. 1.

Largest immediate winners in the budget on the tax-reduction side are municipalities.

They stand to gain, on Mr. Fleming's calculations, some $5,000,000 a year through addition of several new items to the list of items they may purchase free of the 10-per-cent sales tax, including culverts and other sewer products, fire trucks and aluminum for bridges.

The sales tax exemption also is extended to more arm purchases—many are exempt now—and to a new list of building materials that do not amount to a great deal in taxes.

NO MAGAZINE TAX

Mr. Fleming announced a prospective piece of legislation easing the death taxes on estates. It would exempt estates of up to $60,000 left to widows. Estates of $50,000 or more are taxed now.

Some other provisions:

1. The controversial excise tax of 20 per cent on gross advertising revenue of special Canadian editions of foreign magazines is repealed.

2. Canadian tourists travelling for 14 days or more outside continental North America will be able to bring home $300 worth of non-durable goods once a year.

3. There will be a once-in-a-lifetime provision allowing a gift-tax-free property transfer of up to $10,000 between husband and wife, or between a farmer and one of his children.

In setting a record for peacetime federal budget spending, Mr. Fleming's forecast outlay of $5,322,000,000 fell slightly short of the absolute top of $5,322,000,000 in the war year of 1943-44.

The spending program includes an amount of $937,000,000 for public works, up from $36,000,000 the previous year.

SEE RECESSION EASING

However, his actual spending—inside and outside the budget—will go well beyond the old record, because he has to take in the bill for universal old age pensions at 70, which will run to around $55,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Including pension outlays, the indication is for peak spending of $5,665,000,000.

On revenues, Mr. Fleming looked for $4,652,000,000, compared with $5,047,000,000 for the year ended last March 31.

The decline was attributed partly to tax cuts made last year and now and partly to an expected drop in corporation profits.

In his speech Mr. Fleming raised hopes that the recession may be ending.

He said to the House that with many industries over-expanded the Canadian business scene will generate less power toward new construction and expansion. But he said that a new period of Canadian business expansion will not be long delayed.

Meanwhile, Canadian energies could be devoted to providing more houses, municipal services and setting foundations for a new business cycle.

Shooting Erupts in Beirut As UN Officials Hold Meet

BEIRUT (CP) — Shooting broke out in Lebanon's tension-ridden capital again today as United Nations officials met to consider the deteriorating crisis.

Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, flying to the trouble spot, stopped briefly in London as the foreign office disclosed members of the British community in Lebanon have been advised to send their wives and children out of the country.

In Washington, President Eisenhower told his press conference conditions under which the United States would consider sending forces to Lebanon would depend on an unspecified extent on the judgment of Hammarskjöld and the UN observer team.

The foreign office spokesman in London also said Britain would give full support to all UN efforts to solve the crisis but declined a direct reply as to whether Britain would agree to contribute a major contingent to seal the frontiers.

The secretary-general declined any comment during the London stopover but at that time insurgents in this capital who Tuesday night captured a women's prison, started shooting at nearby houses from the prison walls.

The prison is on top of a hill overlooking the city's Christian quarter. The Moslem insurgents were shooting at houses in this area.

There was no immediate word on casualties. The army earlier had removed the women inmates from the prison.

The government was expected to ask Hammarskjöld for a UN emergency force to guard Lebanon's borders against United Arab Republic interference in the 5½-week rebellion against President Camille Chamoun.

Saving in Clerical Work

A leading bulb-grower, he added that a "tremendous saving" in clerical work will result.

Saanich Coun. George Chatterton estimated that abolition of sales tax on sewer and drainage materials may save the municipality $30,000 on a projected program.

The saving could result if ratemakers approve a $1,000,000 bylaw for a new sewer system in the Gordon Head area. But the tax change will not affect the $3,500,000 current sewer program in the Panhandle area.

The other three Greater Victoria municipalities will gain savings of a few hundred dollars on sewer replacement programs. Victoria's saving will run about $1,000 to $1,500 annually, it was estimated.

Tax Deductions Extended

Extension of tax deductions to cover medical diagnoses, prescriptions and glasses was welcomed by the various professions but the deductions will only apply where yearly bills exceed the present blanket deduction of $100 to all taxpayers for medical bills and charitable gifts.

One of the changes affecting the largest number of taxpayers involves revision of the gift tax as it applies to wives.

The new system will allow a husband to give his wife a tax-free $10,000 gift of property—but only once in his lifetime—to his wife.

Trust company officials said this will simplify conclusive establishment of a wife's half interest in a home when she is registered as a joint owner.

At present, she must prove she contributed half the purchase price with her own money or else the gift tax is levied when the tax department learns of the joint ownership or when the husband dies and the estate is being cleared through tax department channels.

"It means that a man buying a $20,000 house can register his wife as a joint owner without having to prove that she paid $10,000 out of her own money by making it a property gift to her," a trust official said. "In the past, it has been difficult to prove she contributed."

ESTATE TAX

Switching of succession duties to an estate tax based on the whole estate also was welcomed by the trust official as a "qualified improvement."

Under a bill scheduled for this session of the Commons, an estate of $60,000 left to a widow would be tax-exempt. The exemption would increase by $10,000 for each child under 21 in the family.

"However, the government should have gone further" in the gift and succession tax changes, he said.

Elimination of the federal sales tax on a small number of house-building materials such as plastic kitchen counters, fuel oil tanks, door knobs and hinges and some types of millwork was included in the budget.

But local builders said the changes would not reduce the costs of smaller homes by more than $40 or $50.

Increase of tax deductions allowed corporations for charitable gifts from 5 to 10 per cent of income was described as a "good move" by H. A. Wallace, president of the Greater Victoria Community Chest.

"But I wonder how many firms are giving even 5 per cent now?" he added.

A similar increase for gifts to educational institutions "will not affect us very much," said Judge J. B. Clearhugh, board chairman of Victoria College.

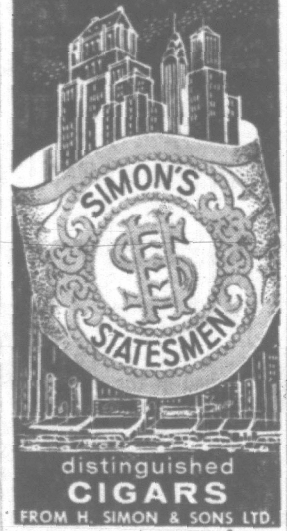

New Officers

Burnside PTA officers were installed at the annual meeting by Miss G. Davies of the teaching staff. They were:

Honorary president, J. H. Bruce; president, Mrs. E. Coles; vice-president, Mrs. N. Swirl; secretary, Mrs. M. Farrar; treasurer, Mrs. T. Tuthill; social, Mrs. P. Taylor and Mrs. J. McDowell.

Sewing, Mrs. P. Peasland; hospitality, Mrs. R. Taylor; membership, Mrs. M. Jefferson; publicity, Mrs. D. Hopkins; program, Mrs. J. Cross.

Mrs. C. M. Lister, retiring president, was presented with a past president's pin.

CARS CAVORT IN UNUSUAL PLACES; DRIVERS ESCAPE INJURY

lision with larger model. As it nosed into ditch, rear end rose and larger car crashed underneath it, as shown. Driver of car on top was Robert P. Howell, 2611 Florence Lake Rd., other driver was Johann

Aldricher, 3272 Seaton Rd. Neither was injured. Accident was at Trans-Canada Highway and Seaton Rd. Telephone pole, two fences and front steps of a home were damaged when car at right driven by John M. Grier, 2120 Cadboro Bay Rd., went out of control on Epworth St. Tuesday night. Police said the car sideswiped a pole, crossed the street and sidewalk ending up against a house at 2162 Epworth.

'PUBLIC SHOULD REALIZE'

Striking Seamen 'Suffering Too'

A statement by Seafarers' International Union business agent Norman Cunningham that "a strike could come at any time" against Black Ball does not mean a walkout is imminent, said ferry president Col. George Paulin today.

"The union has been talking about striking for several weeks," he said, "but I don't think they want to isolate the island."

The union, which is seeking a 25 per cent pay raise for its 350 striking members employed by the CPR, has made similar demands against Black Ball.

Mr. Cunningham told a Nanaimo service club Tuesday, "I don't know how long Black Ball ferries can continue as negotiations of our own and two other unions are continuing, but Black Ball seems to be taking the same line as the CPR."

He described the union's stand for a 25 per cent boost as "our rock-bottom position." The CPR has said it cannot agree to an increase greater than the 8 per cent accepted by 700 non-striking employees of the steamship service.

Mr. Cunningham added that while he realizes Vancouver Island businessmen are losing money and travellers are being inconvenienced, the public should realize that striking seamen are suffering too and that their pay of "$40 to $46 weekly" is insufficient to support a family.

He said the CPR's inability to meet the SIU demands are due to "inefficiency, incompetence and mismanagement where ocean liner service is provided on a ferry run."

Meanwhile, results of strike votes taken against companies operating oil tankers in B.C. are expected Friday.

The SIU has taken strike votes against Shell, British American and Standard oil companies, and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild is planning a vote of Standard Oil union members. Additional votes have been registered by the marine engineers against Shell and B.A.

SALLY ANN FAMILY DUE FROM CHINA

A Salvation Army family will arrive in Victoria next week after five years field work in China.

Capt. Austin Millar, Mrs. Millar and Ronnie, seven, will stay in Victoria while awaiting repatriation. Captain Millar was director of a government school for delinquent boys at Hong Kong.

Arrival date is uncertain. The Millars will visit Mrs. Millar's aunt, Mrs. Frank Fear, 1260 Dunsterville.

Captain Millar will demonstrate a Chinese flute for Salvationist musicians here. He says the flute, almost bugle-shaped, is the most popular instrument in Chinese Salvation Army bands.

Vic College Expansion Goes Ahead

The B.C. cabinet Tuesday approved a $250,000 expansion of facilities for Victoria College.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said in view of extreme crowding at the college, it is hoped the work can be completed before the start of the 1958 fall term in September.

The work includes construction of a third floor at the Ewing Building and relocating of three Gordon Head army buildings on the campus.

The new facilities will provide new space for laboratories, classrooms and the student cafeteria.

The Ewing Building addition will also permit expansion of the college library. Final decision on how the new space will be allocated is up to the college officials, Mr. Chant added.

New Directors Named to Chamber By Record Vote

Nine new directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, elected to serve a two-year term, were announced today by president Hugh Stephen.

They are: W. G. Courtney, H. Barnes, George Gregory, MLA for Victoria, Justin V. Harbord, M. A. Kent, A. Leith, J. C. Thow, Dr. R. J. Wride and W. H. Yardley.

Election was by secret ballot and the total number of votes this year reached a record of 566—more than 67 per cent of the Chamber's membership.

Starting next September, the new directors will serve with nine others who were elected for a two-year term in 1957.

Victoria Observers See Trans-Canada Micro-Wave

By PHIL LEE—Times TV Editor

Canada's new—and the world's longest—micro-wave network works. And how!

As members of the press from coast-to-coast looked on in something close to awe the CBC trotted out its $50,000,000 "baby" and began putting it through its seven-league boot paces shortly after 9.45 a.m. today.

The historic event was witnessed locally from the studios of CHEK-TV by Mayor Percy Scourrah, reeves of municipalities, representatives of the Trans-Canada Telephone System, which built the network, and the press.

The program was carried on a closed-circuit. On July 1, Canada's 91st birthday, the public will see the micro-wave link demonstrating live television from sea-to-sea. It will be carried here by Channels 6 and 2 and will start at 1.30 and last until 3 p.m.

Even the most sophisticated and blasé person watching this morning would have to admit that the electronic miracle seemed more God-made than man-made.

SHARED SCREEN

In a breath-taking demonstration, that was marred by scarcely a flaw, Thomas W. Eadie, president of the Trans-Canada Telephone System, and J. Alphonse Oumet, general manager of the CBC, both sitting in CBC headquarters, Toronto, called for four CBC switchboard operators to share the same 21-inch screens. They were from Vancouver, Winnipeg, Halifax and Toronto. Next, they used the 3,900-mile-long cable to call in stations from nine sections of Canada. Distance covered in less than three minutes: 20,000 miles.

For the first time in Canadian history citizens could see one another while they spoke. A Haligonian could visit a Vancouverite or a Victorian—or vice versa—in a matter of one-fifth of a second.

The demonstration, in addition to being skillfully engineered, was staged with perception and imagination. First the history of communication in Canada was outlined, from the first foot-slogging pioneers to canoes, to horse and buggy, the locomotive, radio, aircraft, telephone and radio. Well-remembered voices were heard again—King George VI's memorable Christmas broadcast of 1939, Chamberlain declaring war; Churchill, F.D.R.

Upon this foundation of communications the micro-wave network was explained. One hundred and thirty-nine towers stretch across the country. Each steel tower picks up the signal from the preceding tower and builds up its power roughly one million times before sending it on to the next tower.

Although trouble was encountered in many sections of the country during the three years it took to complete the network, no region was more troublesome than mountainous B.C., where men and materials had to be dropped in by helicopter such as in the case of Dog Mountain, near Hope, which rears some 6,500 feet above sea level.

The balance of the 90-minute program was devoted to Mr. Oumet and Mr. Eadie answering questions by representatives of the press, radio and TV located in the nine main sections of Canada.

BEING A DUCK OUT OF WATER these days is no fun, and downy baby is telling Mrs. S. W. Hawes, 4139 Interurban Road, all about it. He was found Tuesday in brush at Wilkinson and Interurban Roads by Diane Friend, 323 Conway. K. D. Phillips, 4136 Wilkinson, kept it in his store until Diane arranged for it to "board" with Mrs. Hawes. Yes, it has a little pool.—(Times photo by Irving Strickland).

Partial Forest Closure Follows Hot, Dry Spell

A restricted, industrial forest closure, due to threat of forest fires, is ordered for midnight tonight by Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston.

It applies to the Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island. It will continue until the current warm weather lasts.

The order means all industrial operations within half a mile of forests or woodland are restricted to operation between midnight and 1 p.m. daily.

The order suspends all campfire and burning permits. Provincial camping and picnic sites are still open, but the minister urged caution on all persons using these facilities.

It was the second industrial closure to be effected within the last month. During the last critical period, May 26 to 29, many up-Island sawmills and logging operations voluntarily closed completely.

SOME RELIEF

Meanwhile, sweltering Victorians got some relief from the intense heat of the past few days as temperature hovered around the 67 mark.

Weatherman William Mackie reported a noon reading of 68, up three degrees from the 11 a.m. mark. He expected temperature to "not go much above the low 70s" this afternoon.

Greater Victoria Water Board

commissioner Ronald Upward said today the city was using about 35,000,000 gallons a day, which is 10,000,000 gallons more than the May daily figure. He said consumption rate was 51,000,000 gallons between 6 and 9 p.m. Tuesday, only 14,000,000 after midnight.

WARM WATER

"But there's not much danger of a water shortage," he added. "Biggest problem now is trying to keep the water cool. I'd say it's hitting 70 degrees in the reservoir, which makes it a little bad-tasting."

Victoria fire chief James Bayliss warned that high temperatures "always result in more fire hazards." He asked citizens to be sure cigarette stubs are out before disposing of them.

"We are still issuing burning permits," he added, "but we are watching the situation very closely and we may have to curtail them."

This action already has been considered in Saanich, where fire chief Joseph Law said permits to burn rubbish will be withheld Thursday or Friday if the heat maintains its present temperature level.

Langford fire officials report "extremely dry bushes in the area," and Oak Bay fire chief Bill Pearson asked rubbish-burners to use a proper incinerator complete with screen.

Earlier, Saanich householders were warned that sprinkling regulations will be enforced if the heat spell is prolonged.

During hte evening peak hour, water pressure dropped from an average of 80 pounds to only 20 pounds in some high areas.

Jumping as high as the mercury lately have been sales of ice cream and milk.

Drugstores, too, have cause to rate Old Man Sol their best salesman. Mrs. Joyce Ludlow, assistant manager of a Yates St. pharmacy, said sun-tan lotion and cream, bathing caps and sunglasses were "selling very fast on Tuesday."

And how to keep cool? Said housewife and mother Toni Graeme, 1270 Yates St., "I've got a long glass of lemonade in one hand, a book about Alaska in the other—and I'm going to enjoy both under the largest tree in the garden."

Other Victorians had their own heat-beating wrinkles. One elderly Fort St. man lay in a tubful of cold water all morning, a Saanich part-time stenographer said she was going to spend the whole afternoon in an air-conditioned theatre.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—In Little League baseball play, base-runners are not allowed to "lead-off" (that is, leave his base before the pitcher throws the ball to the plate). Why has the Little League adopted that rule?—L.E.

A.—Original founders of Little League baseball compiled their rules with the express purpose of seeing boys play and enjoy the game in a fair manner. The fundamentals are stressed first and other finer points of the game are taught boys as they grow older. If the lead-off was allowed, it would be unfair to the young pitchers who are trying to learn how to get the ball across the plate, and should not have to worry at this stage about base stealing.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems.

MONTIE ROBERTS

BACK THE ATTACK ON THE SACK!

Do not be deceived by the forces of evil . . . the same forces of evil who forced upon us the demolition of Ripple Rock and the elimination of the five-cent cigar.

These forces of evil are now insinuating subtle propaganda to perpetuate the concealment of female-type women within a sack.

The latest attempt in this direction was exemplified by a picture published on the front page of this very newspaper yesterday.

The picture portrayed a no-doubt excellent female-type woman, clad in a sack.

And the excuse for running this picture—prompted by the subtle propaganda of the forces of evil—is that the sack dress is real cool.

Not in the slang sense, but in the sense of being cooler than, say, a Bikini bathing suit.

Not even the weather is sacred to those who wish to foist the sack upon innocent womenkind, to the detriment of all mankind, especially those who are not too old to look.

The feeble excuse that the sack dress gives more coolness and comfort than other types of feminine attire is nothing less than ridiculous.

The sack dress may well be sensible for warm weather wear.

But since when did female-type women wear any type of clothing because it is sensible?

The next thing you know, someone will be asking us to believe women wear hats because they are sensible, or shoes because they are sensible, or nail polish because it is sensible.

I appeal to you, to all men everywhere, do not be taken in by this subtle propaganda.

BACK THE ATTACK ON THE SACK.

Or, if necessary, fight for the demise of the chemise. Even if it doesn't rhyme.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Haney Correctional Institution deputy warden John William Braithwaite today was appointed warden to replace E. K. Nelson who is taking a position in California. The appointment was announced today by Attorney-General Robert Bonner. Warden Nelson, who was employed to superintend the setting up of the institution and select and train its staff, will assume an University of Southern California position. Mr. Braithwaite, who takes over July 1, has been on the Haney staff since July last year.

B.C. royalty tax on furs taken in the province were reduced today by order-in-council. The tax on beaver and martin is reduced to 50 cents from $1 and on muskrat from 10 cents to 5 cents.

For passing two forged cheques, John Smart, 20, of 910 Market Street, was sentenced in city police court today to one month in jail. The amount of money involved totaled $181.

Arnold Webb, secretary-treasurer of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island, left for Nanaimo today to attend the 40th annual meeting. The Victoria delegation will include Conway Parrott, president of the Associated Chambers, and Hugh Stephen, president of Victoria Chamber.

Frank Mitarcowick, no fixed address, who removed his clothing on Yates Street on the evening of June 14, was sentenced in city police court today to one month in jail for indecent exposure.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said he was sending Mitarcowick to jail so that he could undergo a mental examination. The accused at his trial said he took off his clothes to "defend myself from the public as a whole."

Greater Victoria centennial committee has supplied prize ribbons and rosettes for the annual summer show of Victoria Horticultural Society to be held at the Crystal Garden June 27 and 28. Entries must be mailed to George A. Wiggan, secretary, at 1840 Ferndale Road, RR 5, Victoria, by next Wednesday.

Master of Arts degree in education was presented to Denis W. Brown, supervisor of curriculum services for the Greater Victoria school board, at convocation ceremonies at the University of Washington this week. Mr. Brown majored in administration and methodology.

Silver Threads Service has sent queries to 50 local churches to find out whether they would be able to participate in an overall plan of social and recreational programs for elderly citizens. Replies are expected by July 15 by the Community Chest agency.

FAN CLUB SAYS HE'S A HERO

Rally 'round Charlie Brown

Good ol' Charlie Brown is a hero after all.

At least to his fan club of HMCS Venture, the navy junior officer training establishment at Esquimalt.

Armed with slide rules and obscure mathematical equations, they proved conclusively it was a physical impossibility for manager Charlie Brown to have caught the fly ball which he dropped last Friday and lost the game for his team.

And this is the way they did it: The ball was in flight for three days, just like a sputnik.

In order to do this it reached a velocity of 4,247,000 feet per second, and in fact must have traveled 27,993,000,000 feet (excluding friction) before it reached maximum height.

So, says Charlie's fans, it just wasn't possible for him to catch a ball travelling at 4,247,300 feet per second. And what's more, the ball wouldn't have come down anyway. It would have gone into an orbit after reaching 27,993,600,000 feet above the earth.

Therefore, Charlie, don't cry, says the fan club.

Italian Dressing Tasty Over Almost Any Dish!

By PENNY SAVER

This gourmet has suddenly taken a liking to Italian dressing . . . and can you blame me? I like it sprinkled sparingly over freshly tossed salads, hot spaghetti . . . and even included in my soup!

The tall 37-cent bottle contains the ultimate in dressing flavor and goodness. Why don't you try it today?

Next cocktail party you give, try this for a different and not too difficult treat! Heat up some of the new chip-puffs. They can be bought in any flavor, including onion, garlic, cheese, and tomato. When heated the little chips puff up into life-size wafers!

Topped with a mixture of curry paste (put up in smart crockery jars), you'll be the hit hostess of the season! The chip-puffs are selling at 45 cents a package and the curry 75 cents a jar.

If you're looking for a different idea in salad dressings, why not try cool and tantalizing sour cream dressing? Up to now, it's been the custom to mix sour cream with ordinary salad dressing for a tasty treat. Now, you can buy the sour cream dressing complete! It's 49 cents a tube carton!

Delicious for your next luncheon party would be vegetable aspic jellies. To make them tiny and bite size, cut each jelly mould into odd little shapes and sizes! To do this you need metal cutters. Rather like cookie cutters, only much smaller, these aspic cutters are priced at 98 cents a dozen. They can also be used for tea sandwiches or hors d'oeuvres!

Did you like something I've said in my column today? Then call me at 2-3131.

Centennial United Setting Of Vows

At a double ring ceremony in Centennial United Church, Miss Carol Mary Edith Read, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Read, Front Street, was united in marriage with Ernest Edward Stidston, son of Mrs. W. Stidston and the late Mr. Stidston, John Street.

Rev. Douglas B. Carr officiated at the ceremony.

Wearing a gown of white tulle over satin, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The fitted bodice was of white lace. A coronet of orange blossoms held her fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of red roses and freesia.

Miss Joan Read, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a pink gown with matching floral bandeau. A yellow dress was worn by Miss Shirley Ball, bridesmaid, also with matching bandeau. Both attendants carried bouquets of iris.

John Stidston, brother of the groom, was best man and ushering were Gordon Ball and Don Bull.

A three-tier wedding cake centred the bridal table at a reception in Legion Hall. It was flanked by white candles and vases of red roses. Erling Olsen proposed the toast.

Honeymoon was spent in Vancouver and the United States.

The couple are now making their home at 545 Niagara Street.

LOUISE DAVIS

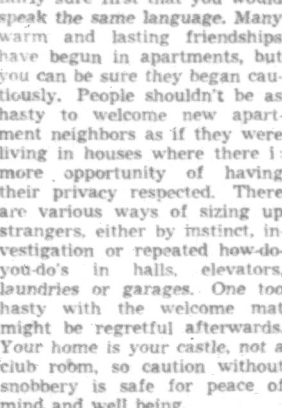

On Etiquette

Greeting New Apartment Neighbors!

Should apartment dwellers call upon newcomers, the same as if they occupied houses on the same street?

Louise Davis answers: Residents in apartments are in a different category from house dwellers.

Unless the newcomers are friends, acquaintances or friends of friends, all live too close together to encourage "clubbiness" too soon, for such community fraternizing in a building can lead to unpleasantness, gossip and cliques. It is thoughtful and hospitable to welcome newcomers, but it would be wise to be fairly sure first that you would speak the same language. Many warm and lasting friendships have begun in apartments, but you can be sure they began cautiously. People shouldn't be as hasty to welcome new apartment neighbors as if they were living in houses where there is more opportunity of having their privacy respected. There are various ways of sizing up strangers, either by instinct, investigation or repeated how-do-you-do's in halls, elevators, laundries or garages. One too hasty with the welcome mat might be regretful afterwards. Your home is your castle, not a club room, so caution without snobbery is safe for peace of mind and well being.

WHY GROW OLD?

Tips for Teen-Agers On Care of Their Skin

All too often the glandular changes which accompany budding adolescence sabotage a young girl's first attempts to be pretty and feminine. It is usually somewhat painful to emerge from the Tomboy stage into the charming Junior Miss category.

Just about the time the feminine teen-ager stops playing softball with the neighborhood boys and starts regarding them as potential escorts for the next prom or dance, her skin may break out in a rash of pimples and her hair may become suddenly oily and lank.

Miss Mary Kirk, director of teen-age activities at Central New York YWCA has special grooming classes for her young proteges. She tells them that the complexion problems connected with the skin's over-secretion of oil at this age can be cut down considerably by washing the face frequently each day with warm water and plenty of soap. This should be followed by adequate rinsing.

Miss Kirk also impresses the girls with the importance of washing their faces thoroughly when they come in from outdoors because of the soot content of city air. Between sudings she warns them to keep "hands off". The habit of continually touching, or worse, picking and squeezing at facial blemishes, not only stirs them up but may also spread infection to other pores.

Mary Kirk recommends the steam method for gently removing blackheads (which often turn into pimples) from clogged pores. First suds the face and hands thoroughly with an anti-septic measure. Then pour steaming hot water into a basin or bowl and put the face down close to the water. Put a large towel over the head to keep in the steam. When blackheads have been loosened push them out gently with a piece of sterile gauze wrapped around the fingers. Rinse thoroughly. It is a good idea to apply alcohol afterwards.

Joint Meeting

Victoria Loyal Order of Moose and Women of the Moose were hosts to members from Duncan and Nanaimo in a fivepin mixed bowling tournament at Capital City Bowladrome for the Island Cup, which was won by Victoria. The match was followed by a social and supper at Moose Hall. It was announced by W. Bentham, governor of Lodge 390, that CHEK-TV, channel 6, will feature the story of the Child City of Mooseheart on Sunday at 6:15 p.m.

TODAY'S RECIPE

FROZEN FRUIT TREAT

One (3-ounce) package cream cheese, 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 1/2 cup whipping cream, 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice, few grains salt, 2 1/2 cups canned fruit cocktail, lettuce.

Cream the cheese and gradually blend in mayonnaise. Whip cream until stiff and fold into cheese mixture. Blend in lemon juice, salt and well-drained fruit cocktail. Turn into refrigerator tray and place in freezing compartment with control set at lowest temperature. Freeze until firm. Reset temperature control to normal. To serve, cut into slices and serve on lettuce-garnished plates.

Makes 6 servings.

If a teen-ager's skin becomes suddenly very oily her hair is likely to be affected in the same way. Here again more frequent washing, or shampooing, is the answer. The old idea that the hair should not be shampooed more than once a week is discredited. Many movie stars have their hair washed and set every day or so, sometimes once a day.

So if your hair is extremely oily during this age, wash it twice a week. Shampooing is only damaging when the hair and scalp are dry. Then perhaps a woman should wait for 10 or 12 days in between dunkings. However, this is seldom the case when it comes to teen-agers.

DISCOVER BEAUTIFUL B.C. THIS CENTENNIAL YEAR

Take a trip to the future - head north to the Peace River and the Totem Route!

For a glimpse at our future — and a glance at our past — follow the Great North Road out of Prince George. Make Centennial Year your year to repeat the route of the Fur Brigadiers and goldseekers to this last, vast northland. See for yourself why places like Fort St. John, Dawson Creek, Pouce Coupe and Fort Nelson are making news — now and in the years to come. A Peace River vacation is still a great adventure. Even with highway improvements and modern accommodation, there's still the thrill of exploring a big, raw land where Nature serves scenic surprises with a lavish hand. Mountains, forests, plains, lakes, rivers, horizons — even the big game animals and full-of-fight fish are twice life size! Prince George is your jumping-off point for another great excursion, too — going west along the Totem Route through Vanderhoof, Burns Lake, Smithers, Hazelton, Terrace and a score of other towns and villages to Prince Rupert on the coast.

DEFICIT OF $648 MILLION

Paper-Thin
Tax Cuts
In Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives' first full-scale budget has given Canadians almost-invisible tax cuts and the prospect of record government spending.

Tax reductions of $26,000,000 a year were thinly scattered in Finance Minister Fleming's budget Tuesday night as he predicted a $648,000,000 deficit, another peace-time high.

For the remainder of the current fiscal year that started April 1, the indicated tax reduction tions are just $8,000,000, a drop in the bucket against revenues of $4,652,000,000.

NO BASIC CHANGES

There were selective tax exemptions, no one benefiting much.

There were no changes in personal or corporation income tax rates, the big items of treasury intake.

Nor was there any change in the special excise taxes on such major articles as automobiles, radio and TV sets, tobacco products and liquor.

By and large, in the first Conservative budget in 23 years, the government stuck to previously defined policies for beating the recession, a mixture of tax and allied policies.

Mr. Fleming's presentation, delivered to the Commons in a two-hour speech, was promptly labelled by the Liberal party as a "sick" budget.

Tariff proposals included wide-ranging immediate changes aimed at protection of some Canadian industries, notably against imports of woolen goods from Britain. This tariff went up from 50 cents a pound to 55 and 60.

Anti-dumping legislation will be forthcoming shortly, though there was some prospect that it could run into trouble from countries exporting to Canada. The proposal will be to toughen the law against goods "dumped" into this country by assessing special dumping duties on the basis of production cost plus "reasonable profit, instead of the present basis of selling price in the country of origin.

When he came to cutting taxes, Mr. Fleming, in his 20,500-word speech, gave away certain hotel registration cards.

Frogmen Hunt Bodies
In Twisted Girders

VANCOUVER (CP)—Skin divers worked in bright sunlight today to recover the last of 18 men killed or believed buried in the twisted wreckage of the collapsed Second Narrows Bridge.

Fourteen bodies were in the Vancouver morgue. Two others were located Tuesday after two sections of the bridge collapsed into Burrard Inlet, but could not be recovered immediately.

Two other men were missing and possibly swept downstream by tidal rips.

The two outermost spans of the skeletal structure, jutting out from the North Vancouver shore, collapsed with a mighty groan soon after 3:30 p.m., plunging construction workers into the tidal stream.

Some victims were crushed to death by the massive girder work falling on top of them. Others were pinned under the water by the debris and drowned before they could be reached. Officials believed others were swept away by the tide to drown downstream.

The men dropped more than 150 feet into the inlet, which varies in depth between 35 and 40 feet.

Most of those taken from the water had life jackets on and some of the victims were harnessed to the girders with safety belts. Rescue workers had to labor with crowbars among the tangled wreckage to free some of the victims.

Shipping through the Narrows was unaffected by the accident. The bridge so far extends barely one-third of the way across the channel and does not cover the main shipping lane. The 200-foot-high centre span has not yet been constructed.

The metal framework rises from the shore on concrete pillars, the last completed being 140 feet high. The bridge is planned to cover a distance of two miles, including approaches.

Today the toppled spans, fourth and fifth in the structure stretching two-thirds across the inlet from the North Vancouver shore toward the city, each cantled with one end in the water and the other leaning on high concrete piers. Mashed within the tangle of girders was the wreckage of a crane which toppled with the fourth span.

The spans that fell had been set in place on concrete pillars

Vancouver Disaster
Damage $4 Million

On the heels of Tuesday afternoon's disastrous collapse of the partially-completed new Second Narrows Bridge at Vancouver, in which 18 men died, there were these developments today:

● A provincial government royal commission of investigation by Chief Justice Sherwood Lett got underway immediately.

● An unidentified foreman on the job was quoted as saying the disaster resulted when a temporary pier holding the outermost steel span gave way. As one span went into the water, it wrenched loose a concrete pier, causing a second span to fall.

● Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi estimated the damage to the bridge itself at $3-$4,000,000 but said this loss will be borne by Dominion Bridge Company, the contractors, and its insurers, and will not cost the public "a nickel."

● CCF Opposition leader Robert Strachan demanded an investigation of the entire highways department and its extended building program. This was echoed by at least one newspaper, the Vancouver Sun, which also asks for a recheck of all major construction projects.

The following story and others on this page and pages 3 and 30 tell the details of the disaster and its aftermaths.

Commissioner
Begins Inquiry

Attorney-General Robert Bonner flew to Vancouver by seaplane from Inner Harbor this morning to confer with Chief Justice Lett on the royal commission investigation.

Chief Justice Lett was appointed by Premier Bennett Tuesday night.

His duties, as a one-man royal commission, will be to determine whether negligence was responsible for the tragedy.

Mr. Bonner carried with him official terms of reference which will govern the investigation.

Terms of reference give wide-spread powers to Chief Justice Lett.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Mr. Justice Lett can call in any experts to assist him.

The government has been offered "all the help they can give" by the Professional Engineers' Society of B.C., the premier added.

The wording of the terms of reference notes the collapse: "... by causes unknown" with "grievous loss of life."

connection, with the aforesaid collapse ..."

The commission is specifically to determine "... whether technical and engineering advice to the toll authority, and any contractor or contractors, in any way involved, ... was sound, and whether such advice was followed, or to any extent disregarded by any person or persons, in employ of the au-

CHARGED WITH EXTORTION

Maid Arrested--Kidnap Suspect

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto police today arrested Greta Goede, 45-year-old German immigrant, and charged her with attempted extortion in connection with a case here.

Inspector John Nimmo said she is the woman wanted in Montreal on a charge of kidnapping two-year-old Joel Reitman.

A warrant for the arrest of Greta Goede, the maid who was taking care of the Reitmans at the time of his kidnapping, and who formerly worked in Victoria, was issued in Montreal today.

The Greta Goede questioned by police here said she had never met the Reitmans and "somebody may be using my name."

After she was arrested here and charged in connection with the extortion case, Inspector Nimmo said: "She is the girl from Montreal."

He said she may be charged here in connection with the kidnapping and taken to Montreal later.

Inspector Nimmo said the extortion case here concerned the family of Arthur Cobham, in suburban York Township, for whom Mrs. Goede worked this spring.

He said a woman had "started sending letters of extortion demanding money." The first letter was received on the morning the woman started to work for the family.

Joel Reitman was left with an Ottawa taxi driver Monday night after three days' absence, during which time the kidnappers demanded a $10,000 ransom from his parents. The tot was back with his parents in Montreal today.

Mrs. Goede said earlier she had been staying with friends in Brampton since May 25 and had returned to her rented room here Monday night.

Police said they had questioned Mrs. Goede for several hours and compared handwriting on notes left at the Reitmans home and the Cobham home.

The extortion notes to the

Cobhams were reported to have threatened that their home would be burned down and their son killed if $2,500 was not put in a certain hiding place.

Traps were laid by police but no one turned up for the packages placed in various spots.

Mrs. Goede, who told reporters she had come to Canada shortly after her husband's death in 1950 also worked for the family of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Belber of Toronto.

"She was a wonderful worker," Mr. Gelber said. "But one day she just left a note and quit."

"She kept the house immaculate," Mrs. Gelber said. "I was very happy with her work."

Mrs. Goede said that after she came to Canada she worked in Edmonton, Dawson Creek, B.C., Fort Nelson, B.C., and Vancouver, as well as Victoria, before coming to Toronto.

New Witnesses
From Toronto
In Bribe Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Crown disclosed today that it is bringing new witnesses from Toronto to testify in the Sommers bribery-conspiracy case involving former lands and forest minister Robert Sommers and others.

Prosecutor Victor Dryer made the disclosure today in commenting on criticism by defence counsel Walter Owen.

The defence lawyer Tuesday charged that the Crown was not calling the right witnesses and that the police seemed interested in contacting only those who would create a prejudice against the accused.

Prosecutor Dryer said that as a result of this he had the RCMP telephone Toronto Tuesday night and contact three more prospective witnesses including a clerk at the Royal York Hotel whom he did not identify.

The development came after William A. Thorne, credit manager of the Royal York was recalled to the stand to identify certain hotel registration cards.

Mild Cheers, Jeers, Yawns Greet Budget

By JOHN MIKA

A general yawn, broken by a smattering of cheers and one loud jeer, was Greater Victoria's response today to Finance Minister Donald Fleming's first budget.

Saanich's municipality and flower growers were chief beneficiaries here under the fiscal changes, but British clothing retailers suffered a setback.

Bernard Shaw's manager, B. W. Storkey, said the government's decision to increase the tariff on British textiles "is definitely a step in the wrong direction."

The tariff was raised from 50 cents a pound to 55 cents on heavy cloth and 60 cents on light material.

"A lot of cloth we get from Britain could not be manufactured here economically anyway, so it won't help the Canadian industry much," he said.

The increase will harm Canada's trade position "because British imports will suffer, but the Canadian industry will not be helped very much," said Mrs. R. G. H. Murray, manager of Island Weavers, Ltd., which imports all its cloth.

"But the increase shouldn't raise retail prices on British garments by more than 20 or 25 cents," she added.

Disappointment for Importer

Charles Watts, manager of the London Silk Co., another importer, said:

"I am disappointed even though it's not a serious increase. It's certainly not going to reduce the cost of living or alleviate the recession and it may wipe out the financial saving on clothing purchases by tourists here which is marginal now."

Saving in Clerical Work

A leading bulb-grower, he added that a "tremendous saving" in clerical work will result. Saanich Coun. George Chatterton estimated that abolition of sales tax on sewer and drainage materials may save the municipality $50,000 on a projected program.

The saving could result if ratemakers approve a $1,000,000 bylaw for a new sewer system in the Gordon Head area. But the tax change will not affect the $3,500,000 current sewer program in the Panhandle area.

The other three Greater Victoria municipalities will gain savings of a few hundred dollars on sewer replacement programs. Victoria's saving will run about $1,000 to $1,500 annually, it was estimated.

Tax Deductions Extended

Extension of tax deductions to cover medical diagnoses, prescriptions and glasses was welcomed by the various professions but the deductions will only apply where yearly bills exceed the present blanket deduction of $100 to all taxpayers for medical bills and charitable gifts.

One of the changes affecting the largest number of taxpayers involves revision of the gift tax as it applies to wives.

The new system will allow a husband to give his wife a tax-free $10,000 gift of property—but only once in his lifetime—to his wife.

Trust company officials said this will simplify conclusive establishment of a wife's half-interest in a home when she is registered as a joint owner.

At present, she must prove she contributed half the purchase price with her own money or else the gift tax is levied when the tax department learns of the joint ownership or when the husband dies and the estate is being cleared through tax department channels.

"It means that a man buying a $20,000 house can register his wife as a joint owner without having to prove that she paid $10,000 out of her own money by making it a property gift to her," a trust official said. "In the past, it has been difficult to prove she contributed."

ESTATE TAX

Switching of succession duties to an estate tax based on the whole estate also was welcomed by the trust official as a "qualified improvement."

Under a bill scheduled for this session of the Commons, an estate of $60,000 left to a widow would be tax-exempt. The exemption would increase by $10,000 for each child under 21 in the family.

"However, the government should have gone further" in the gift and succession tax changes, he said.

Elimination of the federal sales tax on a small number of house-building materials such as plastic kitchen counters, fuel oil tanks, door knobs and hinges and some types of millwork was included in the budget.

But local builders said the changes would not reduce the costs of smaller homes by more than $40 or $50.

Increase of tax deductions allowed corporations for charitable gifts from 5 to 10 per cent of income was described as a "good move" by H. A. Wallace, president of the Greater Victoria Community Chest.

"But I wonder how many firms are giving even 5 per cent now?" he added.

A similar increase for gifts to educational institutions "will not affect us very much," said Judge J. B. Clearihue, board chairman of Victoria College.

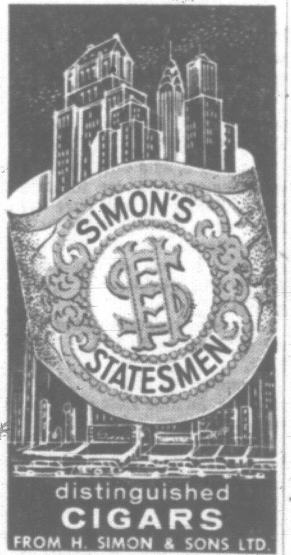

New Officers

Burnside PTA officers were installed at the annual meeting by Miss G. Davies of the teaching staff. They were:

Honorary president, J. H. Bruce; president, Mrs. E. Coles; vice-president, Mrs. N. Swirl; secretary, Mrs. M. Farrar; treasurer, Mrs. T. Tuthill; social, Mrs. P. Taylor and Mrs. J. McDowell.

Sewing, Mrs. P. Peasland; hospitality, Mrs. R. Taylor; membership, Mrs. M. Jefferson; publicity, Mrs. D. Hopkins; program, Mrs. J. Cross.

Mrs. C. M. Lister, retiring president, was presented with a past president's pin.

mainly this on personal income tax:

1. Deductibility of medical expenses is extended to include costs of prescribed drugs, eyeglasses, artificial eyes, ambulance costs and laboratory or other diagnostic services, effective immediately. However, medical expenses will continue to be deductible only when they exceed 3 per cent of income.

2. A husband may claim tax deductions for amounts paid for support of a wife or other dependents under a court order, even in the absence of a divorce or written separation agreement.

Also on income tax, the period for claiming tax refunds will be four years instead of two and interest on tax overpayments is increased to three per cent from two.

For charitable gifts, corporations are granted tax deductibility up to a maximum 10 per cent of profits—instead of the present five—with a view to their making more money available to such institutions as universities. The provision is ineffective from last Jan. 1.

Largest immediate winners in the budget on the tax-reduction side are municipalities.

They stand to gain, on Mr. Fleming's calculations, some $5,000,000 a year through addition of several new items to the list of items they may purchase free of the 10-per-cent sales tax, including fulvets and other sewer products, fire trucks and aluminum for bridges.

The sales tax exemption also is extended to more arm purchases—many are exempt now—and to a new list of building materials that do not amount to a great deal in taxes.

NO MAGAZINE TAX

Mr. Fleming announced a prospective piece of legislation easing the death taxes on estates. It would exempt estates of up to $60,000 left to widows. Estates of $50,000 or more are taxed now.

Some other provisions:

1. The controversial excise tax of 20 per cent on gross advertising revenue of social Canadian editions of foreign magazines is repealed.

2. Canadian tourists travelling for 14 days or more outside continental North America will be able to bring home $300 worth of non-dutiable goods once a year.

3. There will be a once-in-a-lifetime provision allowing a gift-tax-free property transfer of up to $10,000 between husband and wife, or between a farmer and one of his children.

In setting a record for peacetime federal budget spending, Mr. Fleming's forecast outlay of $5,300,000,000 fell slightly short of the absolute top of $5,322,000,000 in the war year of 1943-44.

The spending program includes an amount of $937,000,000 for public works, up from $36,000,000 the previous year.

SEE RECESSION EASING

However, his actual spending—inside and outside the budget—will go well beyond the old record, because he has to take in the oil for universal old age pensions at 70, which will run to around $555,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Including pension outlays, the indication is for peak spending of $5,665,000,000.

On revenues, Mr. Fleming looked for $4,632,000,000, compared with $5,047,000,000 for the year ended last March 31.

The decline was attributed partly to tax cuts made last year and now and partly to an expected drop in corporation profits.

In his speech Mr. Fleming raised hopes that the recession may be ending.

He said to the House that with many industries over-expanded the Canadian business scene will generate less power toward new construction and expansion. But he said that a new period of Canadian business expansion will not be long delayed.

Meanwhile, Canadian energies could be devoted to providing more houses, municipal services and setting foundations for a new business cycle.

Shooting Erupts in Beirut As UN Officials Hold Meet

BEIRUT (CP) — Shooting broke out in Lebanon's tension-ridden capital again today as United Nations officials met to consider the deteriorating crisis.

Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, flying to the trouble spot, stopped briefly in London as the foreign office disclosed members of the British community in Lebanon have been advised to send their wives and children out of the country.

In Washington, President Eisenhower told his press conference conditions under which the United States would consider sending forces to Lebanon would depend on an unspecified extent on the judgment of Hammarskjöld and the UN observer team.

The foreign office spokesman in London also said Britain would give full support to all UN efforts to solve the crisis but declined a direct reply as to whether Britain would agree to contribute a major contingent to seal the frontiers.

The secretary-general declined any comment during the London stopover but at that time insurgents in this capital who Tuesday night captured a women's prison, started shooting at nearby houses from the prison walls.

The prison is on top of a hill overlooking the city's Christian quarter. The Moslem insurgents were shooting at houses in this area.

There was no immediate word on casualties. The army earlier had removed the women inmates from the prison.

The government was expected to ask Hammarskjöld for a UN emergency force to guard Lebanon's borders against United Arab Republic interference in the 5½-week rebellion against President Camille Chamoun.

LET US SHOW YOU HOW MODERN COMMUNICATIONS CAN MAKE MONEY FOR YOUR BUSINESS

Whether it's a message across the office or across the country, successful business transactions depend on the speed with which instructions are received and implemented. Don't handicap your office and sales staff with obsolete communications. We supply a wide variety of equipment, suitable for any size business—a partial selection is shown below. One of our representatives would be glad to show you how modern communications can help you build an even more profitable business. Just call our Business Office.

ELECTRONIC SECRETARY

Answers your phone with a recorded message; asks the caller to leave his message, then records reply. This small, compact unit is ideal for most offices; enables them to offer 24-hour service.

TELETYPE

Provides instant and accurate inter-city typewritten communication between branch offices. Large or small firms find Teletype indispensable for production control, shipping control, sales reports, etc.

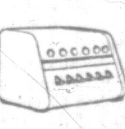

PBX

Private Branch Exchange. Available in capacities from 10 local lines and three trunks to custom equipment providing hundreds of locals and many trunks. Eliminates walking from office to office; essential for smooth control of incoming and outgoing calls.

LOUD-SPEAKING TELEPHONE

Enables user to move about the room or take notes, and talk on the phone at the same time. Operates by miniature microphone and small loud-speaker. Perfect for local or long distance conference calls. Converts instantly to conventional telephone.

SECRETARIAL ANSWERING UNITS

To speed calls and avoid calls going astray, you'll find these extremely useful. When required, one person can answer up to ten designated phones in a single department of your business.

KEY PHONES

Can be used to make and receive calls over more than one line. A call on one line can be held while another is answered.

I.D.P.

Integrated Data Processing. I.D.P. is automation of paper work—an advanced system combining the speed and efficiency of Teletype, leased lines and modern business machines. The time your clerical staff saves can more than pay for the cost of the system.

CALL COLLECT AND ZENITH SERVICES

Subscribing to these Long Distance services is like establishing branch offices at low cost. They enable out-of-town customers to call you by Long Distance, to order or get information, at no cost to them. Both are proven ways to build sales and goodwill.

Duty Increase On Woollens 'Unrealistic'

(From CP and UPI Dispatches)

TORONTO — Joseph Balcon, former United Kingdom trade commissioner in Toronto, said today the 10 to 20-per-cent increase in duty on British woollens and worsteds is "incomprehensible, unrealistic and wrong."

He said the tariff increase announced by Finance Minister Fleming in his budget speech Tuesday will have to be negotiated under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Mr. Balcon is doing public relations work for British woollens and worsteds.

Gerald Peers, Toronto chairman of the British Textile Agents' Association of Canada, said the increase not only discriminated against Britain but also worked against the policy of increasing trade with the U.K.

"The British woollen and worsted industry's participation in the Canadian market is down this year, while Italian and other foreign participation has increased over 100 per cent. There has also been no indication of what the government will do regarding the threat of Japanese exports," he said.

In Ottawa William Bennidickson, Liberal financial critic, pinned the label "sick budget" on Mr. Fleming's first formal budget.

The minister, he said, "offered very little anti-inflationary medicine for a sick budget."

He said Mr. Fleming had introduced some harmony—a blue lantern, a blue carnation and blue clothing.

"We certainly have a blue budget," Mr. Bennidickson said. "We have more than a blue budget, we have a sick budget."

GOBBLEDEGOOK

Mr. Bennidickson said Mr. Fleming spoke a lot of "economic gobbledegook" to explain the country's affairs.

"We have a deficit not by design but a deficit by default, and we can say that the promises of yesterday have become the deficit of today."

VIEW SHOWS TWISTED STEEL AT END OF BRIDGE

BRIDGE

...and to ascertain whether the negligence or faulty work of any person, persons, firm or corporation, in any way contributed to, or caused the said collapse."

"The disaster shocked members of the B.C. cabinet who were meeting in regular session when the collapse occurred. Reporters gave the grim message to Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi as the meeting ended."

Mr. Gagliardi at first thought they were joking. Minutes later he was conferring with senior engineers. Then he was instructed by the premier to fly immediately to Vancouver to investigate.

BY SEAPLANE

Mr. Gagliardi left the inner harbor by seaplane. Prior to leaving he issued a statement expressing sorrow at the great loss of life. "The bridge can be rebuilt," he said. "But we can't replace the men's lives."

Mr. Gagliardi also stated he expected the tragedy would mean a six-months delay in completion of the $19,000,000 span. It was to have been finished in the summer or fall of next year.

The bridge was being constructed for the B.C. Toll Highway and Bridges Authority. It was designed by consultant engineers Swan, Wooster. Construction contract was held by Dominion Bridge, the same firm which last year completed the Point Ellice Bridge at Victoria.

Mr. Gagliardi said the collapse wouldn't cost the province "a nickel more," although the cost to the project may be $4,000,000. The contractors are fully responsible for the bridge until it is turned over to the government. He presumed Dominion Bridge carried insurance against such a catastrophe.

LOSS OF TIME

"It's a serious loss of time which pains me no end. But as far as the government is concerned, the financial loss won't affect us," he added.

Premier Bennett called the collapse a "terrible tragedy."

He added, "Loss of life is distressing to us all." Legal circles at the parliament buildings were uncertain whether survivors, next of kin of workers who were killed, or the Workmen's Compensation Board, which faces claims, would launch suits against the contractors. Much will depend on the outcome of the Lett royal commission, they surmised.

Leader of the Opposition, Robert Strachan also issued a statement upon hearing of the disaster.

INVESTIGATION

He asked a full-scale investigation of the whole public works department. He questioned whether the accident could have resulted as a result of laxity or interference by Highways Minister Gagliardi.

"I think it is now obvious that the number of first-class engineers, which Mr. Gagliardi's policies drove out of government service, created a vacuum which he has been unable to fill."

"It must be obvious that a major change in policy is required to bring back to the department some of the technical, trained personnel who can in future prevent a recurrence of this disaster."

"The minister of highways, whose department is responsible for this work, has been under question by the opposition for some years now."

"We have felt that as a layman he has interfered much too much with the technical personnel, trained in highway and bridge construction, and out of this interference has come the classic expression that Mr. Gagliardi's ideas are a triumph of imagination over engineering."

"Is this bridge collapse a result of Mr. Gagliardi's imagination?"

ASKED QUESTIONS

Mr. Strachan recalled that during the last session of the B.C. legislature, "...I tried unsuccessfully for more than an hour to have the minister answer specific questions with regard to contracts let by his department."

"Only a full-scale investigation of this department can give the people of B.C. the necessary assurance that the present highways department is organized efficiently and is able to protect the interests of the people," he added.

Col. W. G. Swan, chief designer for the engineering firm that designed the $16,000,000 bridge, could give no reason for its collapse. Until the Royal Commission turns up information, he said, "we won't know the answer."

Arabs Blamed For Death Of Canadian

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The United Nations reported today that Lt. Col. George A. Flint, Canadian UN military observer in Palestine who was fatally wounded on Mount Scopus last month probably was killed "by a shot originating from Jordanian-controlled territory."

The report indicated there was virtually no doubt the Jordanians were responsible.

The UN made public a report signed by Maj. Gen. Carl von Horn, Swedish chief of staff of the UN truce supervision organization in Palestine, who led an investigation into the Canadian's death on the disputed mountain near Jerusalem.

The report said the only doubt in the conclusion blaming the Jordanian side lay in the remote possibility that the fatal bullet had ricocheted.

VIOLENCE THREATENS FRENCH CELEBRATIONS

PARIS (UPI)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle led nationwide ceremonies today, marking the 18th anniversary of his wartime rallying call. But Communist orders for "anti-Fascist demonstrations" threatened to mar the day with street rioting.

Heavy police reinforcements were stationed along the Champs Elysee to head off any possible violence between leftwing and rightwing extremists.

FROGMEN

over the water leading to the high central span of the bridge. A temporary support was built to carry the fifth section half-way between the two concrete supports.

BUILT FORWARD

The steel work was being built forward from the temporary support to the permanent support.

Although no steel work had been done on the south side of the bridge, much preparatory construction had been completed since work started two years ago and it was hoped that the bridge might be open to traffic later this year.

The bridge was designed to speed the flow of traffic between Vancouver and the fast-growing dormitory areas of the north shore.

Witnesses spoke of a long thundering roar which accompanied the collapse of the bridge sections. The sections apparently moved hesitantly as they broke their moorings and dipped into the water.

HEAT AND TIDE

The failure came as thermometers touched 81 degrees, highest temperatures here this year, and shortly before the fast-flowing tide reached a height of 17.8 feet, a June record.

But there was no apparent reason to connect the collapse with either of these factors.

Steelworker Bill Stroud said the front section would have been secured on the permanent third pier when his job was completed, likely later Tuesday. He was about to weld a connection when the mass of metal-work collapsed.

People standing on the old bridge directed nearby boats to the survivors. Often the boats arrived to find a corpse.

As the search boats, aided by an RCAF search and rescue helicopter, covered the water again and again in search of the last victims, the curious gathered along nearby roads to watch their progress. Police had begged motorists to avoid the area.

The presence of death was nothing new to the treacherous Narrows. Four men had died in previous accidents on the new bridge and many swimmers and boatmen have been dragged to their death there by the fast tide.

INQUEST

The Vancouver coroner's office will hold an inquest at 10 a.m. Friday.

The office of coroner Glen McDonald said today the inquest will be for purposes of identification and presentation of medical evidence. Then it will be adjourned until investigation of the collapse is complete.

Relatives of the dead bridge workers will be allowed to make burial arrangements after the inquest. Until then the bodies will remain in the city morgue.

NOTICE

Stringing of power lines across Montague Harbour between Parker Island and Galiano Island adjacent to the existing power line crossing, will begin Thursday, June 12th, and will be completed by Friday, June 20th, 1958.

Montague Harbour at the point of the crossing will not be navigable during the operation. Mariners and aircraft please use caution.

APPLIES OWN TOURNIQUET

Calmly Lights Fag After Leg Cut Off

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 22-year-old steelworker, trapped in the girders of the fallen Second Narrows Bridge, put a tourniquet on his severed leg with his belt and then lit a cigaret while waiting for rescuers.

George Schmidt of Vancouver was working in one of the girders Tuesday when two sections of the bridge collapsed, killing 18 men.

Trapped only a few feet above the water of Burrard Inlet, he looked down and saw that one of his legs had been sheared off just above the knee.

He took off his belt and made a tourniquet with it around his thigh. He then smoked a cigaret and waited until two men came and lifted him out of the mangled steel into their rowboat.

Past Bridge Disasters Take Heavy Death Toll

By The Canadian Press

Collapse Tuesday of two sections of the new Second Narrows Bridge across Burrard Inlet in British Columbia recalled two tragedies almost 50 years ago during construction of the famed Quebec Cantilever Bridge.

Two collapses of the bridge near the city of Quebec killed more than 73 workmen.

More than 60 workmen were killed Aug. 29/1907, when a 1,200-foot section of the bridge plummeted into the river. Nine years later, Sept. 4, 1916, as the great central span was almost in place, it slipped and 13 persons were killed as it plunged down.

The original Point Ellice Bridge in Victoria collapsed 62 years ago, plunging a heavily loaded streetcar into the water. A total of 35 persons died.

Seven years ago the 2,000-foot Duplessis Bridge, built for $3,000,000, collapsed at Trois Rivieres, Que. Four men were killed when four spans fell into the ice-choked St. Maurice River.

Canada's most spectacular bridge accident occurred Jan. 28, 1938, when the 1,260-foot honeymoon bridge across the Niagara gorge at Niagara Falls
